Honor Paid To War Dead Here at Two Ceremonies

Nearly 3000 Attend Massing of Colors At Cathedral; Mass Said at Cemetery

The Nation's war dead were impressively honored yesterday in ceremonies at Arlington Cemetery and the Washington Cathedral amphitheater.

Nearly 3000 persons gathered for the Massing of the Colors service at the Washington Cathedral.

And at Arlington Cemetery, representatives of nearly 100 national and local Catholic organizations joined in the tenth annual Memorial Mass for the War Dead.

O'Boyle Is Celebrant

Celebrant of the pontifical mass was the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington. The Right Rev. John G. Cartwright, rector of St. Matthew's Cathedral, delivered the sermon.

The mass was sponsored by the Washington General Aassembly, fourth degree, Knights of Columbus, in association with the National Committee of Catholic Charities. A total of 105 wreaths were laid, with 92 groups participating.

Paying tribute to the war dead buried in the cemetery, Msgr. Cartwright said, "The honor of the soldier is not that he takes life but that he gives his life for his brethren."

For the pagan, he said, "death is only the falling of a curtain" on a life that was a "flame which burned beautifully but briefly." To the Christian, he continued, death is merely a "brief passageway" between life on earth and in heaven.

Msgr. Cartwright cautioned that Memorial Day gratitude to the war dead must be proved by constant efforts to maintain peace.

Seated in Sanctuary

Seated in the sanctuary during the mass were the Most. Rev. William R. Arnold, former chief of United States Army chaplains, and the Most. Rev. Arcene Turquitil, Bishop of Alaska.

The Very Rev. Neil Gargan, rector of St. Aloysius Church, and the Rev. Joseph Moran, pastor of St. Thomas the Apostle Church, were deacons of the mass.

After the mass, honor guards from the American Legion, Catholic War Veterans, Knights of Columbus, Irish War Veterans, Disabled American Veterans and St. John's College cadets stood at attention while Bishop Turquitil blessed wreaths to be placed on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

The service at the Washington Cathedral was highlighted by an address by Maj. Gen. Carl R. Gray, Administrator of Veterans Affairs. The Right Rev. Angus Dun, D. D., Bishop of Washington, presided.

Conspicuously absent from the impressive ceremony was the crack color guard of the American Legion. In all, fewer than a dozen Legion uniforms and only two Legion post flags were observed in the services.

The reason was given earlier by

10 Eliminated, Says CIO of Its Congress Purge

By the United Press

The CIO said yesterday that 10 "antilaborite" Congressmen on its purge list have already been eliminated from the next Congress.

The CIO News listed seven Congressmen who were beaten in primary elections and three who did not run for reelection. Five were Democrats and five were Republicans. They were:

Democrats—Peter Jarman and Carter Manasco, Ala.; Emory Price, Fla.; Hugh Meade, Md., all defeated in the primary, and Joe Hendricks, Fla., who did not run.

Republicans—James Gallagher, E. W. Chadwick and James Scoblick, Pa., all defeated in the primary; Mitchell Jenkins, Pa., and Fred A. Hartley, N. J., who did not run again.

The CIO publication said the Congressmen had "voted wrong" four to 11 times on "12 crucial issues, according to the CIO News' 1947 voting guide." The guide was published last August.

Air Program's Impact On Economy in Doubt

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

What will be the impact of the so-called 70-group air force program on the national economy?

This remains a major—yet unanswered—question now that the air expansion bill has become law.

Will the multibillion dollar spending for supreme air power bring runaway inflation? How will it affect the man in the street? Will it make new automobiles, electric refrigerators, radios, television sets and other consumer goods scarcer?

Defense Secretary James Forrestal forcefully raised these questions during the long congressional debate on the air power issue. Congress virtually ignored them.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (R., Mass.), in a notable speech on the Senate floor, sharply criticized his colleagues for their inaction. Noting that Forrestal had warned that the expanded plane-building program threatened "our greatest defense asset"—our unparalleled productive capacity—he chided the legislators for failing even to take evidence in the dispute.

Instead of calling expert witnesses to resolve this $64 question, said Lodge, Congress went blithely ahead, "risking the danger of killing the goose that lays the golden eggs."

Believing the Senator had raised a vital point, The Washington Post set out to see if there are answers to the questions Congress did not ask.

Legislative Log Jam Faced By Congress

By Jack Steele

With only four weeks remaining until its scheduled June 19 adjournment, Congress faces a serious legislative log-jam which some Republican leaders yesterday admitted has them worried.

It has been many years since so much major legislation remained undisposed of so close to scheduled adjournment.

Thirteen "must" bills include such highly controversial and politically potent items as the draft, civil rights legislation, admission of displaced persons, extension of the reciprocal trade act, revision of the United Nations, housing, and anti-Communist measures.

In addition, 10 big appropriation bills, including that to provide funds for the European recovery program, must be enacted before adjournment.

This heavy load, calling for as much floor action in one month as Congress has taken in the nearly five months it has been in session, poses a tough dilemma for the Republican leadership.

The leaders must decide in the coming week or so whether simply to push through as much as possible of this legislation and then adjourn on June 19 or to give up this early adjournment goal and merely recess for the convention.

If the former course is taken, much of the pending legislation may have to be abandoned. That

Wallace Will Fly To Stalin, Report

London, May 23 (U.P.).—The Sunday Pictorial, an independent newspaper, said today that Henry A. Wallace, American third party presidential candidate, was planning a "sensational peace flight to Moscow" to bolster his chances of election.

The newspaper said Wallace believes he is "the only American who can talk to Stalin."

Aberdeen Tunnel Provides Wind Up to 3000 M. P. H.

By the United Press

The first continuous operating wind tunnel in the world to provide wind speeds up to 3000 miles an hour, four times the speed of sound, has been dedicated at the Aberdeen (Md.) proving ground, the Army announced yesterday.

The tunnel will be used primarily to test guided missiles, which travel at terrific speed. It also will test models of supersonic planes, rockets, shells and bombs.

Five powerful engines generating 13,000 horsepower run huge fans that force the air through the tunnel.

Triplets Make Ex-Trapezist Father of 35 Children at 68

(From Press Dispatches)

New York, May 23.—Anthony Dupre, a 68-year-old former circus trapeze artist, today became the father of triplets—bringing his total number of children to 35.

His wife, Juanita, 34, gave birth to the first of the triplets before police and a physician could reach the Dupres' Manhattan apartment. The triplets—two girls and a boy—were rushed to Harlem Hospital.

Dupre, now a kitchen worker in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, was overcome with emotion after becoming a father for the thirty-fifth time. When reporters cornered him, he answered several questions—then leaped onto a neighborhood child's bicycle and peddled madly away.

Dupre, a native of France, has been married four times. His first wife bore him four sets of twins. His second and third wives bore 23 children. He and his fourth wife had a year-old son before the birth of the triplets today. Altogether, the count is 14 sons and 21 daughters.

He was once a circus trapeze artist, performing in Italy and Central America.

"One time I was somebody, today I'm nobody," Dupre said, shrugging sadly.

His oldest child now is 51. It was born in Argentina, where Dupre married the first time at 17.

Dupre worked for a while as a butcher in the French market of New Orleans. Later he joined a circus, doing trapeze and trick bicycle acts. By this time he had 31 children.

"But I was getting old," Dupre said, his grey eyes twinkling. "So I quit the circus."

Asked if he planned to have any more children, he said:

"Just give me time, son. Don't rush me."

Rule Strands Ill Officers In Hospitals

Comptroller General Says Thousands Were Illegally Recalled To Duty in Army

By C. B. Allen

Thousands of sick and injured reserve officer veterans of World War II are financially marooned in Army hospitals because of a Comptroller General's ruling that they were illegally recalled to active duty while the Government evaluated their retirement claims.

This situation was confirmed by Army officials who said it was neither of their making nor to their liking but they were powerless. They further disclosed that hapless Army finance officers who had been issuing such officer-patients their pay and allowances, might legally be held personally responsible for "unauthorized disbursements" totaling millions of dollars.

Ruling Denounced

Both the Reserve Officers Association and the Air Reserve Association denounced Comptroller General Lindsay C. Warren's ruling when informed of its sweeping results. Brig. Gen. William C. Lewis, executive director of the ARA, said it was the "most vicious thing I ever heard of" and added that his organization would "go to bat on the matter" immediately.

Col. John Oliver, Washington legislative agent for the ROA, said his association would "carry the issue to Congress, if necessary." He added that many of the reserve officers were on the "flat of their backs" in Army hospitals when the arbitrary pay cut-off was put into effect May 1 and had neither the ability nor the means to support themselves. Hospitalized officers are required to pay for their own meals, laundry, etc., though they receive free medical treatment.

Oliver said the Army's previous policy of calling wartime officers back to active duty after they had been separated from service and developed presumably service-connected disabilities that would entitle them to military retirement pay had been adopted largely because of ROA action. The association, he said, at its first postwar convention in Chicago two years ago adopted a resolution condemning the War Department's "discrimination" against reserve officers in forcing them to pay their own expenses when hospitalized for retirement purposes. It was after this, Colonel Oliver said, that the paid active duty policy, now scuttled by the Comptroller General, was adopted.

Walter Reed Told Of It

At Walter Reed Hospital, news of the pay cutoff was broken in a memorandum to "all officer patients concerned" under the heading "status of officers recalled to active duty for physical evaluation." It simply embodied a letter written to the commanding general of the hospital by the Adjutant General of the Army March 28.

"A recent decision from the Comptroller General," this said, "provides, in effect, that officers recalled to active duty solely for physical evaluation are not on active duty within the law so as to become entitled to active duty pay and allowances. The department contemplates legislation, if required, to forgive payments made previously to officers under such circumstances and to include pay-

French Balk At Decision On Germany

Want U. S. Military Guarantees Before Backing Formation Of New Government

By Walter Kerr

Paris, May 23 (NYHT).—The French government's unwillingness to go ahead with the formation of a government of western Germany without United States military guarantees has increased in the past week, leaving final agreement at the six-power London conference still far from reality.

The French link this issue with the over-all question of the security of Western Europe, hence they are not prepared to yield until they hear more promising news of a military guarantee by the United States.

Temporary Decisions

France is insisting that any decisions reached in London are temporary, that they must be studied by the individual governments concerned, and then ratified only insofar as they are in accord with the foreign policy of each nation.

This means that even if agreement in principle is reached in London, execution of the agreement will be delayed pending further negotiation.

What the French Government would like to see is a meeting of its Foreign Minister, Georges Bidault, with Ernest Bevin, British Foreign Secretary, and United States Secretary of State George C. Marshall. At such a conference it wants to see clearly what lies ahead for the western European union, and what the United States can do to help.

The irritation that has developed recently at the London conference is apparent from the latest reports of French correspondents, who usually know what their government has in mind. Reporters for the French news agencies, Le Monde and Le Figaro, all join now in accusing the American delegation of trying to force France to accept a settlement for western Germany.

Securities Involved

They raise first the question of control of the Ruhr (security against Germany) and second, the question of the final division of Germany (security against Russia). The second step is the more serious at the moment and the one which creates the desire for an American guarantee.

Wrote Le Monde yesterday: "It is the Americans who sometimes excite the Muscovite bull, but it is the French who will receive the first blows of its horns."

It concluded: "It can be asked then, if, rather than play such a game, we should not do better to renounce any agreement on Germany and leave the Americans to take the responsibility alone."

Dewey Increases Lead in Oregon

Portland, Oreg., May 23 (U.P.).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, tonight stretched his margin of victory over Harold E. Stassen in the Oregon presidential primary to 9000 votes.

Late official tabulations in Multnomah County (Portland) increased Dewey's decisive lead over the former Minnesota Governor. Tallies of complete and incomplete returns from 1736 of the State's 1861 precincts gave Dewey 107,501; Stassen, 98,741.

Grand Juror's Charge

Invasion of Charles County By D.C. Numbers Men Reported

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Members of the Washington numbers fraternity have moved in "strong" on nearby Charles County, Md., a member of the county's special grand jury charged last night.

The juryman, who preferred to remain unidentified, told The Washington Post the jury was seriously concerned by widespread violation of gambling and liquor laws.

The alleged gambling violations consisted mainly of operation of slot machines until recently, he said. Then, he declared, "numbers people from Washington" became active.

The alleged liquor lawbreaking involved sales by taverns to minors, and sales on Sunday and disorderly conduct in and about establishments. The jury members said tavern patrons frequently overflowed to sidewalks, making it "a hazard for pedestrians to get by."

The jury, which was headed by Foster M. Reeder, retired Washington business man, wrote a strong report Wednesday placing the blame on the "duly elected enforcement officers" of the county.

The State's Attorney is Thomas C. Carrico, appointed to fill an unexpired term, and the sheriff is Elmer M. Quade. Both declined comment on the charges.

A member of the jury declared that "businessmen are afraid to talk. The gamblers are a powerful group here, and can do them a lot of harm."

A grand jury began investigating gambling in the District last Monday and is expected to continue this week. Reports have been circulating that numbers men are closing shop in the District and moving into nearby areas.

The Charles County grand jury, meeting at La Plata, 35 miles from here, after turning in its report, requested that it be recalled in 90 days, and that during the period the court should announce that persons with information on gambling and liquor law crimes prepare to offer testimony.

After the veniremen reported to Chief Judge William H. Loker and Associate Judges Charles C. Marbury and John B. Gray, jr., the court ordered a special session of the jury for August 16.

The jury report was signed by Reeder as foreman and Clerk Clarence O. McDonagh. Reeder was sales manager of the Addressograph Co. in Washington for 13 years before retiring to a Mount Victoria farm in Charles County.

In neighboring St. Marys County, operation of slot machines proved a serious problem of law enforcement for several years. Last December, the devices were

Israel Offers to Halt All Fighting Today; Egyptians in Holy City

Fury of Battle Mounts as New Force Seeks to Aid Arab Legion

Cairo, May 23 (AP).—An Egyptian mobile force drove into Jerusalem today to bolster Trans-Jordan's Legionnaires attempting to crush Jewish resistance in the Holy City, Arab sources reported.

Arab and Jews clashed in hand-to-hand fighting in Jerusalem, just 300 yards from the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, a dispatch said.

A bitter engagement also occurred on Jerusalem's southern approach along the Egyptians' avenue of entrance. Both Arabs and Jews claimed victory there.

Battle Mounts in Intensity

Despite reports that the Jews had given a cease-fire order on all fronts, the battle for Jerusalem mounted in intensity with the hours. Trans-Jordan's Arab Legion opened up with the heaviest barrage of the six-day battle against Jewish army machinegun posts in Notre Dame Hospice.

Then Arab volunteers charged into the ground floor. They were reported to have fought from room to room with the Jewish troops.

The fighting just south of the Holy City centered at Ramat Rehel, the strategic halfway point between Bethlehem and Jerusalem.

Both Claim Victory

Both the Jews and the Arab Legion said they had won, and inflicted heavy casualties on the other side. (Control of Ramat Rehel apparently would be necessary for any sizable movement of Egyptians into Jerusalem.)

The Israeli army in Haifa said its troops had cleared the vital Palestine coastal road from the Lebanese border to Tel Aviv, 75 miles to the south.

Jewish units captured Ras en Maqura, a Palestine customs and police post on the Lebanese frontier. The road-clearing operation also involved the capture by the Jews of the Arab village of Tantura, south of Haifa.

Air raid sirens wailed during the day in Haifa, when six unidentified planes passed over the port city, but there was no attack. The Jews announced that Israeli planes bombed Arab troops and a bridge in the Jordan River Valley.

There was no indication in Cairo reports of the number of Egyptian troops involved in the reported drive into Jerusalem. According to the Arabs, this Egyptian column has come 52 miles from Beersheba to Jerusalem in the last few days.

Battle at Five Points

Jewish and Arab troops were locked in battle at five points in and around Jerusalem. Fighting still raged in the old city, where a beleaguered Jewish garrison is defending 1500 Jews inside the walls,

Smuts Voices Call For U. S.-British Association

London, May 23 (AP).—Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts, Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa and veteran empire statesman, today called for an association of the British Commonwealth and the United States to "give pause to any potential aggressor."

"Mankind . . . is now visibly splitting into two worlds," he said ". . . perhaps we shall progress in due course from two worlds to one: at present it is two . . .

"The USA, by virtue of its secure geographical position, its unequaled resources and its immense war potential, has a special position in the west. The Commonwealth accepts and welcomes that."

Interned at Camp

Lebanese Won't Free 41 Americans

By The Associated Press

The Arab state of Lebanon has rejected the United States demand for release of 41 American citizens taken off the American ship Marine Carp at Beirut, the State Department revealed Sunday night.

The Lebanese government's reply said the Americans, all Jews of military age, were taken off the Palestine-bound ship and interned "in view of the safety of the Lebanese army of occupation in Palestine and for order and security in Palestine territories occupied."

The State Department had informed Lebanon and other Arab states that this country would take a serious view of any such discrimination against American citizens on grounds of race, creed or color.

Lebanon's reply was received Saturday by Lowell Pinkerton, U. S. Minister in Beirut, who protested the removal of the Americans in advance and later relayed to the Lebanese government this

Consul General, Killed by Sniper, To Be Buried Today

By the United Press

Chief Engineman Herbert M. Walker, 27, U. S. Navy, has died in Jerusalem, the second American victim of the Palestine fighting, the State Department was advised Sunday night.

The Department had disclosed earlier that Thomas C. Wasson, U. S. consul general in the Holy City, who died early Sunday, would be buried at 10 a. m. Palestine time Monday in the crypt of a Catholic convent.

There was no further word from official sources on the condition of a third wounded American, Thomas Gannon, of Washington, D. C., a U. S. consulate guard who was shot in the back as he stood in front of St. Julian's Hotel in Jerusalem last week.

In Consulate Unit

The department said Walker died at 8:45 p. m. Jerusalem time Sunday of machinegun wounds he received at 10 minutes after midnight Friday. Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon. He was a member of the Navy Communications Unit at the Consulate.

William C. Burdett, acting United States Consul General, informed the department emergency regulations in Jerusalem require burial within 24 hours after death.

Wasson died at 6 a. m. Jerusalem time (midnight EDT) Sunday of a bullet wound in the chest. He was shot down Saturday as he walked unprotected through the streets in Order Complying With U. N. Demand Made Contingent On Action by Arabs

Tel Aviv, Israel, May 23 (AP).—The government of Israel said tonight it was prepared to cease fire on all fighting fronts, provided the Arabs do likewise.

The Israel communique said it decided to issue the cease fire order immediately. It did not set a time for it to go into effect.

[The United States State Department announced its acting consul general in Jerusalem had been informed by the Jewish Agency that a Jewish cease fire had been ordered effective at 8 p. m. Palestine time Monday (12 noon EDT), apparently contingent on the Arabs also accepting a United Nations Security Council order for a cease fire by 9 p. m. Palestine time Monday.]

Text of the Israel government communique:

"In view of the resolution adopted by the Security Council to order a cease fire in Palestine, the provisional government of Israel's state, at its meeting this afternoon, decided that an order immediately be issued for a general cease fire by the defense forces of Israel on all fronts, provided the other side acts likewise at the same time.

"Should the other side announce a cease fire at an earlier hour, the same order to the Jewish forces would be advanced accordingly."

Seven Arab Nations Preparing Answer

By the United Press

The provisional government of Israel announced Sunday that its forces would cease fire on all fronts in Palestine Monday night in compliance with a United Nations Security Council demand.

The cease fire order will be effective at 8 p. m. Palestine time Monday, United States Vice Consul William C. Burdett cabled the State Department from Jerusalem.

If the Arabs cease fire earlier the Jews will do likewise, the Israeli announcement said. If the Arabs defy the Security Council, then the Jews must resume action, it was added.

Egyptian government source said in Cairo that the seven Arab nations were now preparing an answer to the Security Council's cease fire demand.

Only on Original Terms

A United Press Cairo dispatch quoted well informed sources that the Arabs would accept a cease fire order only on previously announced terms: (1) the stoppage of Jewish immigration to Palestine and (2) disarmament of Jewish military organizations.

The Jews have flatly refused to accept any such conditions.

The Security Council Saturday called upon Jews and Arabs

Finnish Rallies Demand Another Red Minister

Helsinki, Finland, May 23 (U.P.).—Communists staged rallies and mass meetings throughout Finland today, to urge that another Communist be appointed Minister of Interior, replacing Communist Yrjoe Leino, who was dismissed yesterday.

The demonstrations were reported orderly, but there were indications the agitation would increase Monday, probably spreading to Helsinki which was quiet today.

Leino was ousted after he ignored a presidential order to resign. As the Minister of Interior he had charge of the nation's police force, and was chief censor.

The government requested Leino's resignation following a parliamentary vote of non-confidence in the Communist minister after he was charged with turning over 10 Finns and 10 foreigners to Russia without extradition proceedings in 1945.

'Voluntary' Rent Rises Approved for 42,991

House Expediter Tighe E. Woods announced yesterday that 15 per cent "voluntary" rent increases were approved for 42,991 dwellings last month.

This compares with 171,289 new leases filed with area rent offices during July, 1947, the first month of operation under the old 1947 rent law. "Voluntary" increases have now been approved for 1,699,485 homes.

Still Greater Deficit Seen

Membership at All-Time Peak, UPWA Found Running at Loss

By Robert Bedolis

New York, May 23 (NYHT).—The United Public Workers of America, militant-speaking member of the Congress of Industrial Organizations' minority left-wing camp, "is operating, financially, at a loss . . . with a probable trend toward a greater deficit," it was learned today.

The estimate of the union's current financial operations was made by Bernard Ades, a New York certified public accountant, in a report to the union concerning his audit of the UPWA books.

The union, which claims a membership of 86,000, including 23,000 Federal employes, announced at its convention in Atlantic City last week that its membership is at an all-time high.

Critical of United States foreign and domestic policy and enthusiastic over the third party of Henry A. Wallace, the UPWA is being threatened by the Keefe appropriations bill rider, and has pledged an all-out fight against it.

The rider, passed by the House and now being considered by a Senate subcommittee, bars wage payments to Federal employes who are members of a union whose officers refuse to file non-Communist affidavits as required by the Taft-Hartley law. Representatives sponsoring the rider make no secret of the fact that it is aimed at the UPWA, which maintains, among other arguments, that the affidavits are irrelevant in its case on the ground that Government employes are excluded from the provisions of the law.

The statement of the UPWA's financial status showed the union has accumulated surplus funds totaling $123,560. However, Ades' analysis disclosed that the union's income against expenses in the last

Turkey Is Fearful Of Palestine War

Egypt Commander In Palestine

Associated Press WIREPHOTO Via Radio from Cairo

BATTLEFRONT—Gen. Ahmed Mohamed Al Mawowee Bey, commander of Egyptian army forces, as he appeared yesterday on southern Palestine battlefront

Istanbul, Turkey, May 23 (AP).—Foreign Minister Necmeddin Sadak said today Turkey is deeply fearful over the Palestine situation, and wants a peace there that will leave the Arabs masters of their own destiny.

Sadak spoke before his constituents in the middle Anatolian Province of Sivas. It was the first formal declaration of Turkey's position since it opposed the United Nations partition plan.

Turkey's greatest fear is that the war eventually may bring in Russian forces and flank Turkey with troops of a big neighbor it regards as unfriendly.

Sadak mentioned Russian-United States exchanges, and observed:

"The American Government has given assurance that the approach made to Moscow should not in the least be interpreted as a change in policy of the United States in the eastern Mediterranean and the Middle East."

Restating Turkey's foreign policy, Sadak said:

"Our purest objective is that threats of aggression, designs aimed at domination and conquest, be eliminated between peoples and relations of friendship and mutual cooperation based on the principles of honor and dignity be established; that none should interfere in the internal affairs of another; and that each be left in peace in his territory and sovereign rights," spread across the nation. He said

Some observers saw in that an advance reply to any proposal by Russia's newly-arrived envoy. There has been speculation that Russian Ambassador Alexander Lavrishev might suggest renewal of a long dead friendship pact.

The Turks are not expected to accept unless Russia drops her demands for eastern Turkish provinces and joint control of the Dardanelles.

Sadak brought into the open guraded conversation which has spread across the Nation. He said "a certain froeign propaganda contending that American aid infringes on our soverign rights and independence of the country in some domain is the fruit of the blackest invention and cannot dupe anyone."

cease fire within 36 hours from midnight Saturday (EST).

In Jerusalem last night a spokesman for the Jewish Agency handed Burdett the following statement:

"The provisional government of Israel has ordered cease-fire on all fronts as of 2000 hours local Jewish cease-fire order comes into effect at the earlier hour.

"If after 2000 hours local Jewish time the other sides does not cease fire Jewish defense must continue."

Hour Before Expiration

Presumably "local Jewish time" refers to 8 p. m. Monday in Tel Aviv, seat of the Israeli government. That would be noon EDT Monday, or one hour before the expiration of the 36-hour deadline set by the Security Council. Tel Aviv went on double summer time Saturday midnight.

Jewish agency officials told Burdett the move was being made in response to the Security Council's appeal.

The Jewish Official told Burdett "the Jerusalem fronts are included" in the cease fire order.

Burdett received the statement in his capacity as acting United States representative of the three-nation United Nations Truce Commission, rather than as acting United States consul.

Jews Vow They'll Kill British in Arab Legion

Tel Aviv, Israel, May 23 (U.P.).—Jews vowed today to track down and kill every British member of King Abdullah's Trans-Jordan Arab Legion.

a Jerusalem dispatch said.

Both sides told of a hard-fought engagement at Ramat Rehel, the traditional location of Rachel's Tomb, and a half-way point on the 5-mile streich of road between Jerusalem and Bethlehem.

A Trans-Jordan communique said King Abdullah's Arab Legionnaires seized Ramat Rehel and inflicted heavy casualties on the Jews.

An Israeli army bulletin issued in Tel Aviv said the Legionnaires penetrated the settlement, but were repulsed, leaving "tens of bodies." The communique gave Israeli casualties as 12 dead.

Jewish agency officials said Jerusalem will be defended as "another Stalingrad" against invading Arab troops.

Al Assas, the newspaper of Premier Mahmoud Fahmy Nokrashy Pasha's party, reported Egyptian troops operating along the Palestine coast had launched an attack against a Jewish settlement about 5 miles north of Majdal. This would put the Egyptians about 23 miles south of Tel Aviv, the Israeli center, and about 4 miles south of the coastal area assigned the new state under the United Nations partition scheme.

A Syrian communique denied Jewish claims that Israel's troops had reoccupied Samakh on the sea of Galilee. Syrian artillery sank one vessel and destroyed another on Galilee and Syrian planes attacked Jewish settlements south of the sea, the bulletin said.

Iraqi planes were reported by the Arab League to have attacked Jewish defenses in Beisan.

The secretary of the Latin patriarchate at Jerusalem said Passionist Father John Salah was fatally wounded by Jewish machinegun fire Friday as he entered the Sisters of Charity Church on the Mount of Olives to say mass. The secretary, Father Ibrahim Ayad, said the shots came from the vicinity of the Hebrew university on Mount Scopus.

Father Ayad is of Arab extraction.

41 Americans Are Interned

country's demand for their release.

The Lebanese note said the Americans, along with 28 other passengers removed from the Marine Carp, obviously were intending "to join elements of trouble and anarchy in Palestine."

Some of the Americans, the note added, "far from claiming American citizenship and protection, gloried in obedience to the state of Israel." It referred to all of them as "illegal immigrants."

In conclusion, it said of the captured Americans:

"They have been directed to detention camp at Baalbek where they are lodged and fed in care of Lebanese authorities and can be visited at any time by the representatives of the American legation."

While the Lebanese note did not in so many words refuse to free the seized men, the State Department said it was in effect a rejection of the American demands.

The State Department also was informed Sunday by Pinkerton that the seized Americans are in good health.

"An officer of the legation visited the Americans yesterday (May 22), and talked personally with each of them," he said. "He reported all in good health.

"There were complaints of inadequite sheets, soaps, towels, etc. The legation officer was assured improvements at the internment camp were being made as quickly as possible."

Lebanese officials seized the 41 Americans Wednesday while the ship was in Beirut Harbor bound for Haifa in the new Jewish state of Israel.

John Burroughs Pupils Will Parade Tuesday

The demonstration, which will include youngsters in costume and floats, is designed to show the manner in which the school and neighborhood cooperate for the betterment of the Woodridge area.

New Mass Graves Found

Warsaw, May 23 (AP). — A war crimes investigation commission reported today new mass graves of 60,000 Soviet prisoners-of-war had been found in western Poland.

U. S. Jews Ask Emigration To Holy Land

By the United Press

A number of American Jews want to emigrate to Israel as soon as the new Jewish state is ready to receive them, it was disclosed here.

The office of the provisional Jewish government here said it had received a 'considerable number" of requests from Jews wanting to reside in the Holy Land.

Many are young people. Some are business men who want to take their families and establish new enterprises in Israel. "A few" are men with "military backgrounds who want to get into the fight."

Road Long and Difficult

It was made clear the road for would-be pioneers is long and difficult.

There are some 250,000 Jews in displaced persons camps in Europe, and 28,000 on the British island of Cyprus, who have priority. Jews in eastern European countries where anti-Semitism exists also probably will be favored, he said.

He said that the new Jewish state will have to be highly selective. When the fighting is over, he said, the primary need will be for technicians, engineers, welfare workers and administrators.

The State Department admittedly is not giving passports now without compelling reasons.

Americans are forbidden by law to fight in armies of other nations.

The Jewish spokesman said he knew of no passports issued to American Jews to go to Israel since it proclaimed itself a sovereign nation May 14.

First Volunteers Quit Germany to Fight for Israel

Zeilsheim, Germany, May 23 (AP). A band of Jewish volunteers headed for Israel from Germany tonight.

They were the first would-be fighters to leave Zeilsheim's overcrowded displaced persons camp for the Palestinian war since Israel became a state. Recruiting posters had called them to arms.

"We expect to die," they said. "Send our love to our relatives in America. Tell them to come and join the struggle."

An eager exodus of volunteer soldiers is getting under way from dozens of Jewish camps in Germany. Jewish leaders estimate 500 young fighters have left.

A thousand fellow Jews saw the 17 men leave in an old bus. Old men burst into tears, women sobbed and a child cried as the crowd sang the "Song of Hope."

Arabs Seen Put on Diplomatic Spot by Jews' Acceptance of United Nations Truce Call

Lake Success, May 23 (NYHT)—Jewish acceptance of the United Nations demand for a Palestine truce appeared today to have put the Arabs on a diplomatic spot—one that may lead to the lifting of the American embargo on arms shipments to Israel.

The Arabs still have until 12 noon (EDT) Monday to comply with the call for a Holy Land "cease fire" which the Security Council voted Saturday after rejecting an American demand that the Arab invasion of Palestine be declared a breach of the peace.

There was no indication, however, of Arab agreement to a truce except on the basis of a complete political and military "standstill" that would, in effect, be a revocation of the Jewish proclamation of independence.

Faris el Khouri, Syrian delegate, said the Arabs are ready to agree to a truce on the basis of the Council resolution of April 19, the one that speaks on a political "standstill," and Mahoud Bey Fawzi, Egyptian representative, said that a truce would have to be "in the completest sense possible."

The Jewish acceptance was received here without much surprise and with little comment.

The American delegation expressed the hope both sides would have agreed to a truce by tomorrow's deadline. The Security Council is due to meet at 2:30 p. m.

The Americans are understood to regard the cease-fire demand as something more than a mere appeal to Jews and Arabs to stop fighting.

If the Arabs reject a truce, the Americans are expected to press their demand for council action that could lead to possible economic and military sanctions against the Arab states.

It is the thinking in American circles that the council must live up to its responsibilities in this matter and if it does not the United States may be forced to take some form of unilateral action, possibly lifting the embargo on the shipment of arms to Israel.

British to Abandon Arabs, Israel's First Lady Says

New York, May 23 (U.P.).—Mrs. Chaim Weizmann, first lady of the new state of Israel, said today Britain will soon abandon the Arabs on their fight for the Holy Land.

Mrs. Weizmann's husband is the newly elected president of Israel's council of government.

Addressing 2000 American and Canadian Jewish leaders attending an annual convention of B'nai B'rith, she said:

"It is with profound sorrow that we must for the time being accept the attitude of that great power. But I am sure that the moment is not far off that Great Britain will join hands with the western civilization and will abandon the people who are fighting us."

German Reds Defy U. S. Ban in Berlin

Berlin, May 23 (AP).—Berlin Communists, opening their "people's plebiscite for the unification of Germany," today defiantly entered sections of the American zone, where the referendum is banned.

They brought sound trucks urging Germans in the U. S. sector to vote and set up tables in scattered areas to take signatures on their petitions.

U. S. officials said those with petitions will be warned. Arrests will be made if they persist.

After receiving the warnings, the Communists withdrew from the American sector, the officials said. Police then banned all future plebiscite activity in the sector.

The plebiscite is banned in the French zone of Berlin but is tolerated in the British "unless intimidations are employed."

At Frankfurt, Stars and Stripes, U. S. Army newspaper, quoted an Army report to the effect Soviet agents are slipping into the American occupation zone of Germany for "espionage and subversive activities."

The report was quoted as saying the smuggled agents will "certainly have an adverse effect on internal security in the U. S. zone."

Taegliche Rundschau, official Soviet newspaper in Berlin, said food rations are not being fulfilled in sections of the Russian zone and demanded greater efforts from the Germans to solve the food shortage.

Telegraf, British-licensed newspaper, reported the Russians had broken incipient hunger strikes of factory workers at Leipsig by arresting their leaders.

The food shortage was bad enough to force the Russians to import grain from the Soviet Union for the first time since the occupation. Ships bringing the first of a promised 40,000 tons of grain and fodder began arriving last week at German Baltic Sea ports.

Just 11 Billions

Lend-Lease Is U. S.-Soviet Difference

By the United Press

The United States has about gvien up all hope of Russia settling her 11-billion-lend-lease account, informed sources said yesterday, and new tension in Russo-American relations is not improving the future outlook.

Long-delayed negotiations that began early this year between American and Soviet officials have been suspended again after four "periodic" meetings, and one official said little had been accomplished.

But it was emphasized that this country will continue to seek a settlement, especially in light of the recent Russian "peace offensive." Here is the way one high United States official put it:

"If the Russians really want to do business on 'peace,' let them show it by sitting down for serious discussions — and settlement — of their lend-lease bill."

American officials said this country is not interested so much in settling Russia's account for munitions shipped to the Soviets at the height of the war. What the United States would like is settlement of the Soviet account for industrial machinery shipped shortly before VJ-Day when everyone knew the war was over.

But the United Press informant said United States officials "have little hope" of ever getting down to brass tacks with the Russians.

Southerners to Push Segregation in Draft

By the United Press

Southern Senators made it known yesterday that they are determined to go through with a long and bitter floor fight to write a racial segregation clause into the draft bill.

Their stand threatened to cause indefinite delay in Senate action on the measure, which may reach the floor Thursday.

The House Rules Committee meanwhile prepared to resume hearings today on draft legislation. Representative Andrews (R., N. Y.) sponsor of the bill, said he had been informed the committee will wind up its unusually lengthy sessions in time for House floor debate to begin June 1.

Senator Russell (D., Ga.) revived the segregation issue as Senate Republican leaders worked behind the scenes to eliminate another disputed item from the Senate draft bill: the provision for inducting 18-year-old "umtees" for one-year's training.

Sponsors of the measure were reported ready to abandon the modified UMT program because of the stiff opposition to it in the House. That would leave the Senate bill calling for just what the House bill provides—a straight draft of men 19 through 25 for two years services.

The House is standing firm on its refusal to enact UMT in any form and the Senate apparently will have to go along if there is going to be any kind of draft.

Senator Lodge (R., Mass.) has suggested that the issue might be settled by providing that each branch of the service set up its own segregation policy.

Allies to Move In On Berlin Police

Berlin, May 23 (AP).—The three western occupying powers served notice tonight they plan to install liaison officers Monday in Berlin's three central police headquarters, now under the tight control of German Communists.

The three headquarters are situated in the Russian sector of Berlin.

The Russians termed the plan illegal, said it represented "interference," and instructed Berlin's police president, Paul Markgraf, to ignore the three-power order.

New Cabinet Is Completed By de Gasperi

Rome, Italy, May 23 (U.P.).—Premier Alcide de Gasperi today announced completion of his sixth cabinet since he took office in December, 1945. He pledged the new Italian government to support the Marshall Plan, a five-year anti-Communist policy, and social reforms.

The new cabinet was completed after de Gasperi met throughout the day with Liberal Party Sen. Giovanni Porzio, 76, Naples lawyer. Porzio finally accepted a vice premiership in charge of handling problems of southern Italy.

De Gasperi announced completion of his cabinet after calling on President Luigi Einaudi, who will swear in the members Monday. The cabinet will meet for the first time Wednesday.

De Gasperi will take the new government before Parliament May 31 for a certain vote of confidence.

The cabinet posts are distributed as follows: Christian Democrats, 11, including de Gasperi; right wing Socialists, three; Republicans, two; Liberals, three, and Independents, two.

Poles Urged To Hold Faith

Warsaw, Poland, May 23 (AP).—The Catholic Church warned Poles today against abandoning their religion and becoming slaves to materialism.

Appealing primarily to the nation's youth now being mobilized by the Communist-led Warsaw regime, a special pastoral letter urged young people to stand firm in their belief in God against "a strenuous nation-wide materialistic propaganda."

The letter was issued by August Cardinal Blond, primate of Poland; Adam Stefan Cardinal Sapieha and the conference of bishops to be read in all Catholic churches this Sunday.

Youths aged 16 to 21 are to work on reconstruction projects and to undergo military training 16 hours monthly. The government has promised them complete freedom to worship as they please. The youths are living in tented colonies in reconstruction centers.

Today's pastoral letter was one of the mildest yet issued by the Catholic hierarchy in Poland. Previous letters protested what was termed lack of "freedom of speech, freedom of press and freedom of conscience." The government warned the church that further outspoken criticism along that line would bring retaliation.

Probe Sought In Polk Death

By the United Press

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., (R., Mass.), asked the State Department Sunday for full information on the death of George W. Polk, American radio correspondent murdered in Greece.

In a letter to Secretary of State George C. Marshall, he said "it is of the utmost importance that the American people be acquainted with all of the facts in this tragic case."

Polk, a correspondent for the Columbia Broadcasting System, was found dead in the bay of Salonika. His body was bound and he had been shot in the head.

Last week a committee of newspaper and radio men was formed under the leadership of Columnist Walter Lippmann to inquire into Polk's death.

Boy Scouts Among 8 Seized By Czechs in 'Plot' on State

Prague, Czechoslovakia, May 23 (U.P.).—Eight persons, most of them Boy Scouts, have been arrested as members of an alleged underground organization, police announced today.

Officers said the organization, known as "Plamen" (flame) had established an "illegal anti-state group whose aim was the ideological reeducation of the population."

Police said the group also planned to "arouse unrest and change the people's democratic regime by force if necessary—by the distribution of leaflets and untrue news."

Automatic pistols, a light machine gun, and two nitro-glycerine bombs were found in one of the arrested boys' home, along with leaflets and stencils, the announcement said.

Czechs will vote next Sunday on a one-party ticket.

Comdr. Owen C. Holleran of the Distirct of Columbia department of the legion. He said the legion was slighted by not being given a place of prominence in the parade of more than 100 patriotic orgaonizations in the Cathedral grounds. But individual legion posts were allowed to participate if they wished.

The only Legion post flags seen were the banner of National Cathedral Post 10 and that of Victory Post 4, the latter carried by a woman auxiliary of the Legion.

Heading the parade was a band made up of high school cadets. Next in line was a color guard consisting of four Negro members of the Military District of Washington. Then came the Marines, the Navy and other Army Units. Also included were the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Amvets, and numerous other patriotic groups.

The event, given annually here, was sponsored by the Military Order of the World Wars and the Washington Cathedral.

The United States Marine Band and the Boys Choir of the Cathedral provided the music for the services.

Chiang Picks Wong Wen to Head Cabinet

Nanking (Monday), May 24 (AP). Wong Wen-hao, 59-year-old Canadian-educated engineer and chairman of the National Resources Commission was nominated today as China's premier.

Chiang Kai-shek's choice of Wong came as a surprise. The nomination was sent to the Legislative Yuan after the post was rejected by Gen. Ho Ying-chin, recently head of China's military mission to the United Nations.

Wong would succeed Chang Chun, who resigned recently because of ill health and his admitted failure to cope with China's critical economic problems.

General Ho's unwillingness to take the job had thrown into deep confusion the prolonged efforts to organize China's new constitutional cabinet.

It highlighted the most serious internal challenge to Chiang's leadership in more than 20 years.

This opposition, best sources say, comes from the arch-conservative clique which has acknowledged Chiang as master for so long.

(Although Nanking did not say so, this apparent rightist opposition to the boss could be mainly an attempt to regain the prestige which suffered such a severe blow when the Reformist Gen. Li Tsung-jen was elected Vice President of China April 28.)

General Ho, former chief of staff and recently head of China's military mission to the U. N., said he had told Chiang, "the choice of a premier should fall on a better-qualified man, and he concurred."

London Press Again Full of Royal Baby Talk

London, May 23 (AP).—Speculation that Princess Elizabeth is expecting a baby in the fall broke out afresh today in the London press.

The Sunday Express said Buckingham Palace is discussing "an interesting announcement" for the immediate future. Accessible court sources repeated what they have said for months:

"If this is true only the royal family knows about it."

The palace said Elizabeth has extended her public engagements to July 27.

To indicate that a royal birth is expected, the palace usually announces, about four months before the reckoned date, that no further engagements will be undertaken.

Phone Equipment Strike Threatens

New York, May 23 (AP).—A union leader said today a strike of 30,000 telephone equipment workers throughout the Nation, was imminent.

He said the strike threat has arisen because of the "flat rejection" by the Western Electric Co. of union wage demands.

Dan V. Harris, fourth vice president of the CIO Association of Communication Equipment Workers, said the company offered no counterproposals to the union's demand for a general wage increase of 31 cents per hour.

Rumor of Jap Trade Revival Stirs Manila

Manila, May 23 (AP).—A whispering campaign is circulating in Manila a rumor that the United States is planning to bring Japanese carpet-baggers and traders back to these war-ravaged islands.

These reports are widespread. Their origin has not been traced, but they are bringing a new wave of anti-American feeling.

They are coupled with factual newspaper accounts of American efforts to make Japan self-sustaining.

At government levels, suspicion of American aims is not so evident, but even there some exists. For example, the Philippines Senate has just amended the agreement for the Voice of America broadcast in Manila.

The senators insisted the Philippines censor propaganda material. This stipulation will have to be accepted or the United States State Department must attempt to renegotiate the agreement.

This country has avoided all trade with its former enemy since the war, but on Saturday the Commerce Department proposed to resume exports of iron ore to Japan.

The nationalistic Manila Chronicle turned its guns on this proposal:

"We must not forget," it declared, "that Japan was able to build up her war industries precisely because of the iron ore and scrap metal she obtained from foreign countries, some of which were later to have the material returned in lethal form. The United States was one, and the Philippines was another."

U. S. Support of Japs Stirs China Protests

Peiping, May 3 (AP).—Students of National Peking University were endeavoring today to establish an association opposing American support of Japan.

In Shanghai, 15,000 students of various universities demonstrated yesterday against American aid for Japan.

Impact of Air Plan On U. S. Uncertain

gram affect the key steel and aluminum industries?

Where will shortages and tight spots appear?

What about manpower in the present tight employment market?

What sort of an airplane program is in view, anyway?

There were almost as many question marks as dollar marks in the $3,198,000,000 plane-buying bill. President Truman added some in signing the measure Friday. He warned he'd keep aircraft spending firmly in his own hands—not the Air Force's—and move cautiously in ordering the additional planes insisted on by Congress.

In seeking answers, this reporter interviewed many of the Nation's leading plane builders—the men who know best what materials and manpower will be required. Then to get a broader and disinterested view, the same queries were put to top advisers of Secretary Forrestal and experts of the separate National Security Resources Board.

Their views varied in part, but formed the basis for some definite conclusions.

Here is what the aircraft industry leaders had to say:

(1) The program will get started slowly. There should be little or no immediate impact on business. Even when the five-year plan gets into full swing several years hence, it will total only 5 billion dollars a year—less than 2 per cent of the gross national effort—and should have no great effect on the economy of the country.

Conservative Program Planned

(2) The orders which the Air Force and Navy plan to place with the industry involve what plane builders described as a "practical" program. Another term might be that it is conservative. Instead of letting contracts for some promising new jet craft which still have "bugs," planes that now are ready have been chosen.

(3) Demands of the industry for steel, aluminum and other key materials will not be great. Trouble will come in specialized fields largely unrelated to the public. The program will not create any noticeable shortages in consumer goods.

(4) Considerable difficulty will be felt in getting the builders of aircraft accessories to divert part of their output from more profitable civilian business to supplying the Armed Forces' needs. But the plane-makers arehopeful this can be done by voluntary means, without controls.

J. H. Kindelberger, president of North American Aviation, points out that the so-called 70-group USAF and Navy expansion programs are far from all an all-out mobilization.

Next year, the industry will product 25 million airframe pounds or aircraft—the usual yardstick—and will build up to a top of 110 million pounds in 1953. In contrast, the industry had to multiply nine times during the first two years of the war. In the peak year—1953—the output will be only one-tenth the airframe output of 1944.

Sees No Effect on Business

Kindleberger is the industry's recognized expert on mobilization problems. His company is expected to get a large bloc of the plane orders and he has studied the situation canrefully.

"I foresee no immediate effect on business," he said. "The build-up will be slow. Congress is handing us a lot of seeds. It will take about 18 months for them to get above ground.

"If the orders are placed now, it will take about that long for new planes to appear and perhaps two years for any substantial output."

This is a somewhat different picture than conveyed by a recent Air Force release. The latter said first deliveries would come about the first of next January. Undoubtedly these will be simply reorders of present models.

Kindleberger said that during the peak year of the air power program — 1953 — the Nation's steel mills will have to run only three hours and 36 minutes to turn out the steel required for that year's aircraft production.

The aluminum industry will be called upon to work only 20 days the same year to take care of 1953 aircraft needs, he said. This compares with five or six days aluminum production used now by the plane builders.

The North American head agreed with other plane builders that the chief pressure on the steel and aluminum industries will come from aircraft demands for relatively small quantities of high temperature alloys, special forgings, tapered aluminum sheets, etc.

"The program will have some considerable impact in special areas of our economy," said J. Carlton Ward, jr., chairman of Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corp. "But in my opinion it will not materially affect the consumer goods fields—radio, television and the like.'

Mundy I. Peale, president of Republic Aviation Corp., agreed with Kindleberger and Ward that the program probably will be accelerated slowly and should have no great effect on the industrial economy.

Some Plants to Expand

Ken Ellington, assistant to Peale, said an order expected by Republic for P-84 Thunderjets probably will be tacked on the end of their present P-84 contract which runs out next spring. Other plants, however, which do not now have sizeable orders, will have to expand to put their new types into production. That is, they must hire new workers and put in some new machine tools for new jet planes.

Fairchild's Ward declared that he sees no trouble getting manpower for the new program, despite the present "saturated" labor market of 60 million employed. The number of employables is more elastic than many economists contend, he said, for a large number of women are available.

"We've got to sell people on the stability of the aircraft industry, however," says Don Douglas, jr., of Douglas Aircraft Co. "We've been selling the idea of a dying industry—as it was—and there'll be a job getting the good people."

While the plane builders don't want to talk for publication on the point, they do not intend to rehire "Rosie the Riveter" in quantity if they can help it. They hope the pull of the aviation industry will bring in the men from other jobs and let the latter be filled up by women.

Not So Many New Jobs

The number of new jobs to be created by the air expansion program is not large. Something above 200,000 workers are now employed in airframe, engine and accessories plants. Personnel experts believe the peak total will be less than double this figure.

Chief difficulty is anticipated in the higher skills. If a draft bill is passed, industry chiefs do not feel it will greatly affect them for the present.

But they agree with A. M. Rochlen, assistant to the president of Douglas Aircraft, that two points should be taken care of in passing the proposed limited selective service. One is to assure an adequate flow of young engineers into the industry over the next few years. The other is that proper provision be made in the bill for deferment of technicians, for the contemplated limited draft suddenly could become an all-out mobilization.

But the main worry the plane-builders have is the renegotiaton clause written into the aircraft bill. They say they have no objection to it themselves, as some form of profit limitation is necesary for firms dealing with the Government.

"Lawyers' Picnic" Seen

The complexity of the laws governing profits, however, will make the program a "lawyer's picnic," and render manufacturers of accessories more reluctant to accept subcontracts, they say. Besides the renegotiation law, the builders of planes are also subject to the Vinson-Trammell profits limitation, and quarterly "redetermination" of their costs and profits.

Naturally, there is difference of opinion over the Air Force decision to concentrate its 1949 bomber orders on the Boeing B-50 series—improvements of the B-29— and the North American B-45, first of our jet bombers. Other companies would like to have seen some orders saved for more promising jets, still under test.

The Air Force answer is that we must take the best available now rather than wait for some "ifs." This is especially so as to the B-45. Plane crews and "grease monkeys" must be trained in quantity to operate and maintain jet bombers. Bombing techniques must be developed. The only way to start is to start. Next year's installment of the five-year program can switch to later models.

Some different answers to many of these air power questions are given by Forrestal's office. They do not challenge the plane-builders' figures on steel and aluminum demands, manpower, tight spots, etc. Nor do they disagree with the conclusion that the aircraft program is relatively small and would have no great impact on our economy by itself.

The Longer, Broader View

They emphasis the last two words. If it were not for the fact that the expanded aircraft program has to be imposed oh a tight economy, along with other expansion plans—atomic energy, European recovery, limited merchant marine and Navy shipbuilding, Army weapons, additional facilities to care for manpower increases in the armed forces—the plane building could be absorbed, say the Office of Defense officials.

One more straw, however, may break the camel's back and send us into runaway inflation and trouble. This would mean not only higher prices for us all, but that the additional money voted by Congress for the Army, Navy and Air Force would buy little.

Maybe the full 70-group Air Force program can be carried out without trouble, and maybe it can't, say the defense chiefs. If all goes well, they would say yes. But some bad strikes in basic industries would put the fat in the fire.

The defense officials also question the conclusion that the air program will have little or no immediate effect. Already, it has had some psychological impact throughout industry, according to preliminary reports.

Experts of the National Security Resources Board tentatively agree with the latter conclusion, but seem less concerned with the long-term threat of the air power program than do Forrestal's aides. They say that:

Generally steel will be "tight," but can be handled. The airplane orders will cause trouble in alloys.

Overall aluminum demands will require more electric power and may mean reducing service in some areas. Aircraft production may cut down the avilability of some kitchen utensils. But the aluminum picture is not expected to cause much trouble.

There is a great deal of capacity left in the radio, radar, television fields, and air power needs are not expected to be felt here.

Some trouble is to be expected in machine tools, though many to be used in the air program will be taken from war stocks.

The manpower situation is good in southern California, where the great bulk of the plane factories are. There will be trouble in some spots like Wichita, Kans., and wherever housing is short.

These divergent views held by leaders of the aircraft industry and Government economists in the Office of the Secretary of Defense and the NSRB permit some conclusions to be drawn. They are listed in a separate column.

The differences of opinion, however, call attention to a serious lack in our present governmental machinery. Defense chiefs admit that since the disbanding of the old War Production Board, no Federal agency has been able to provide reliable answers to such vital questions as these.

NSRB in Year, Maybe

Existing Government agencies can give opinions only today. It is hoped that within a year the new National Security Resources Board will be in a position to offer sound advice on fundamental matters of this nature. At present it is not.

As for the actual effects of the air power program upon the national economy, much will depend upon what President Truman, Defense Secretary Forrestal and Budget Director Webb do within the next few days.

The President made it plain that he and Forrestal will have much to say about plane orders and may hold some of them back until the economic picture is clearer. Congressional air power advocates may howl, but there seems little they can do about it.

Conclusions on Effect Of Air Force Program

Here are some conclusions drawn from the composite views of leaders of the aircraft industry and Government economists on the question: What will be the impact of the so-called 70-group air force program on the national economy?

1. The air power program, by itself should not have any marked effect on the economy of the Nation. Coupled with other Government expansion programs, some danger exists. Close students of the problem disagree as to whether the programs present a serious threat of inflation and real trouble in the present tight economy.

2. The program will be slow getting under way and the full impact will not come for about two years. There will be some immediate effect, possibly largely psychological.

3. Consumer goods should not be directly affected in a major way by the plane orders, unless they became the "final straw which breaks the camel's back."

4. Chief effect of the program on the man in the street will be higher taxes to pay for the multi-billion-dollar orders.

BRITISH AIM TO RULE MIDDLE EAST THRU PUPPET KING ABDULLAH

by EDGAR ANSEL MOWRER

Here is the real explanation of Britain's current plot against Palestine, the reasons for which have mystified the entire world. I cannot disclose the identity of my informant—but here are the facts.

The world has not been able to understand Britain's secret motives in disarming the Jews while arming the Trans-Jordania Arabs; the motives for permitting British officers to accompany the Trans-Jordanian invaders while Britain was sabotaging the U. S. eleventh hour plan for a trusteeship over the Holy Places. Why, people ask, should His Majesty's Government stoop to a final offensive against its Jewish wards just when Britain was withdrawing from Palestine altogether?

Here are the answers:

Britain does not expect to stay out of Palestine, at least not out of all Palestine. Britain expects to stay out of the State of Israel. But Britain is very much in Trans-Jordania—and expects to remain there.

Trans-Jordania can, however, serve Britain adequately only if it can be enlarged in a certain way. The frontiers of partition drawn by the U. N. Commission do not satisfy Britain's ambitions for King Abdullah.

These frontiers leave to the Palestinian Arabs northwest Galilee along the Lebanon border—which British plans do not require Abdullah to possess. Yet to permit northwest Galilee to go to the state of Lebanon would alarm unduly the Christian half of the Lebanese. Therefore, the Jews can be permitted to acquire northwestern Galilee.

In exchange, Abdullah must obtain most of the Negeb, that wedge-like portion of Palestine that extends from the Mediterranean down to the Red Sea. This would make Trans-Jordania the only country in the Middle East except Egypt that fronts on both the Mediterranean and the Red Seas. A railway line connecting a Mediterranean port, perhaps Gaza or a place farther west, with Aqaba on the Red Sea, would parallel the Suez Canal. Thereby Britain, forced out of Egypt, could both defend and control the Suez Canal from the eastern side.

For this reason the Jews must be forced to yield the coveted portion of the Negeb which the U. N. Commission bestowed upon them. This they would never do voluntarily. Therefore it must be captured by Abdullah's British-armed and British-officered Arab Legion. At this point the Jews could, the British believe, be compelled to give up the Negeb in exchange for western Galilee.

But this is not all of Britain's plans. Abdullah's present kingdom is, with the exception of a narrow strip along the river Jordan, a desert waste. Its capital, Amman, is a Bedouin village. The British are planning to let him (Abdullah) take over a new and splendid capital, namely, Jerusalem itself.

If Abdullah can seize the Holy City, take over the Arab areas of central Palestine, add the Negeb, link up a port on the Mediterranean with Aqaba on the Red Sea, then his country will be one of the most important in the entire area. Arab Trans-Jordania and not Jewish Israel will become the radiating center of occidental influence in the Middle East.

Occidental influence would mean British influence.

This joint British-Arab dream can be brought about only subject to three conditions:

1. There must be no trusteeship that will let American and French forces back into the area. More important, there must be no international trusteeship over the Holy Places for otherwise Abdullah could not make Jerusalem into his capital city.

2. Abdullah's armies must be strong enough to wrest Jerusalem from the Jewish Haganah. This they can best accomplish under British leadership. Therefore the British commander and the British officers must remain with the Arab Legion unless and until the United Nations make this impossible.

Finally, Haganah must be defeated quickly or it cannot be defeated at all. Once ports of Israel are open to the free influx of Jewish volunteers and Jewish war materiel, Haganah will quickly become unbeatable. Therefore Abdullah must take what he covets now—or never.

To make sure that Abdullah would take all the quick tricks, his troops were brought into Palestine in advance . . . by the British. The Palestinian Arabs who might help him were armed in advance . . . by the British. And the Jews who are now opposing him were disarmed in advance . . . by the British. (from the New York Post)

Congress May Study Plan to Curb Lewis

Represent NLRB

2 Officials To Be Heard On Labor Act

By The Associated Press

Two key Government labor officials get a chance this week to tell Congress what, if anything, they think is wrong with the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.

Sen. Ball

Chairman Paul M. Herzog of the National Labor Relations Board and Robert N. Denham, general counsel, will go before the congressional watchdog committee on labor and management relations in public hearings held after about a year's trial of the much-discussed law.

In advance of the hearings Senator Ball (R., Minn.), chairman of the Senate-House group, told a reporter he sees little immediate chance of amending the Taft-Hartley Act with one exception. That is a provision requiring the NLRB to hold a special authorization election before a union can seek a union shop contract.

Ball said that unions claim to have won "about 99 per cent" of all the special union shop elections held to date anyway and that NLRB officials say the elections cause a logjam of board work. Senator Ives (R., N. Y.) and Representative Landis (R., Ind.) have introduced bills to drop the election requirement as a needless expense. They will be early witnesses on the subject.

In addition to the union shop election issue, Ball has suggested testimony on these proposals:

1. What steps can be taken to speed up handling of both representative and unfair practice cases to final decisions?
2. Should provision regarding industrywide bargaining and work stoppages be strengthened?
3. What is a sound permanent solution to the problem of union welfare funds?
4. Should strikes or threats of strike be made unlawful when they are "aimed at forcing employers to agree to contracts either violating the law or evading it?"

might cause serious political repercussions, since many of the measures involve pledges made by the Republican party in its 1944 platform or in the 1946 congressional campaign.

Should Congress fail to keep a substantial number of these pledges, the party will be in an embarrassing spot to repeat them in this year's platform, which will be adopted within a week after the scheduled adjournment.

On the other hand, if Congress comes back to finish its work after the Republican convention, party leaders fear that the session will turn into a political debate in which the Republican nominee might become embroiled.

The session might also drag along for many more weeks, with the Republican majority then struggling to live up to promises already written into the party's 1948 platform.

Some Republicans fear this would result in public ridicule of Congress in the midst of a Presidential campaign in which their party must stand on its congressional record.

House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., and Senator Robert A. Taft, chairman of the Senate Republican policy committee, held several secret huddles last week.

By the United Press

Congress may consider the National Coal Association's demand that it curb the powers of John L. Lewis, but there is no chance of a decision at this session.

That view was voiced yesterday by two influential members of Senate and House committees which would act first on any new labor legislation. They said it was too close to adjournment to decide such "controversial" issues.

Chairman Ball, (R., Mich.) of the Senate Labor Subcommittee which drafted the Taft-Hartley law, seconded the association's proposal to subject the United Mine Workers to the antitrust laws. But he said he has not made up his mind about the association's second recommendation: that Congress outlaw pension and welfare plans as part of collective bargaining agreements.

Chairman Hartley (R., N. J.) of the House Labor Committee and co-author of the new labor law, is a stanuch advocate of curbing the "monopolistic" practices of labor unions, either by antitrust prosecutions or an outright ban on industry-wide bargaining.

The association's proposals were advanced as negotiations between Lewis and soft coal producers remained deadlocked over the question of seating a representative of the Southern Producers Association. Lewis insists that Southern producers signed the current contract as individuals and therefore should bargain as individuals on a new contract. The present agreement expires June 30.

Great Air Force To Need Ships, Adm. Carney Says

By the United Press

Vice Admiral R. B. Carney, Deputy Chief of Naval Operations, said yesterday the Air Force expansion program has increased the Nation's need for a strong merchant marine.

He was interviewed by Radio Commentator Charles Parmer in connection with National Maritime Day.

Carney said the Nation "must build more and better ships" for its merchant fleet "now" if it wishes to be prepared for a future war.

"A powerful Air Force operating from bases within striking distance of any enemy," he added, "will require an uninterrupted and tremendous flow of supplies which can be transported only by a merchant marine."

Carney quoted World War II figures to show it would require 10,000 four-engine cargo planes and 120,000 men to move by air the supplies that 44 cargo ships manned by 3200 men could transport by sea.

CIO Challenge

High Court May Act on Red Oath

By the United Press

The Supreme Court may announce today whether it will review the National Maritime Union's challenge of the constitutionality of the anti-Communist section of the Taft-Hartley law.

The CIO union last week appealed to the Supreme Court to reverse a decision by a special district court upholding that phase of the act. The section forbids unions to use the services of the National Labor Relations Board until their officers sign affidavits that they are not Communists.

Another hotly-debated section, the ban on political expenditures by labor unions, already is before the court. The Government appealed after Federal District Judge Ben Moore, in a CIO test case, ruled the politics ban unconstitutional.

Even if the court agrees to pass on the Maritime appeal, that case is not likely to be scheduled for argument and decision until fall.

Senatorial Prerogative

Apparently it was a concern more with senatorial courtesy than with the merits of the issue that led the Senate to vote down the Knowland resolution on Hawaiian statehood. Senator Knowland had proposed to discharge the statehood bill from the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs and bring it up on the Senate floor. But it is a long-standing custom that the Senate respects the decisions of its committees, and so the Butler Committee's determination to postpone statehood pending another investigation won out even though the committee arrived at this decision by the close vote of 7 to 5. The pity is that the failure of the Senate to take up Hawaiian statehood after the House had voted affirmatively makes it necessary to go through the whole arduous procedure of hearings and investigations again next session.

One explanation given for the seeming senatorial indifference is that the Republicans want the credit for passing statehood legislation after November. If this explanation has any logic, it escapes us. Certainly the negative attitude of the Senate did no good to the fortunes of Delegate Joseph R. Farrington, himself a Republican and the sponsor of the statehood bill in the House. Also, the 51-20 Senate vote against the discharge resolution dealt a slap to another Republican legislator, Senator Knowland.

It is likewise hard to believe that Senators are seriously alarmed by the alleged threat of communism in the islands, which was cited as requiring another investigation. And, despite the almost unanimous vote of Southern Democrats against the Knowland resolution, it appears unlikely that racial considerations had much bearing on the Senate action. That in itself offers some encouragement, for the fear voiced occasionally that Hawaii might in the future elect persons of Japanese ancestry to Congress is scarcely a praiseworthy criterion by which to pass on the rights of American citizens. We hope that the Senate will soon take pains to demonstrate that it does not hold with such specious arguments as that of Senator Ecton that "in view of the many different nationalities we must be concerned with what might take place 25 or 30 years from now." What, indeed, could result from granting Hawaii its long-promised statehood except a welding of nationalities in the American tradition and a furthering of loyal citizenship that would be a distinct credit to the American Union?

Pattern Repeated

The breakup of the conference between representatives of the coal producers and the miners is ostensibly due to the UMW's claim that the Southern Coal Producers Association is not entitled to participate in the conference, as it was not a signatory to the 1947 agreement. The UMW further maintains that the association is "a paper organization and a holding company and propaganda organization . . . guilty of the same obstructionist tactics used in the past to confuse the issue."

The technical objections to the presence of this association's representative at the conference table raise questions that, we think, call for official clarification. But it would be naive to assume that the breakup of the conference was caused by a dispute over a question of representation. That difference of opinion merely affords Mr. Lewis an opportunity to put pressure on the Northern coal operators to conclude a separate wage contract with the UMW, as they did last year. By following the policy of "divide and conquer" Mr. Lewis succeeded in negotiating a highly favorable wage contract that forced the more recalcitrant segments of the industry subsequently to fall into line. Such procedure gives Mr. Lewis all the advantages of industry-wide bargaining, on which he used to insist, shorn of the disadvantages attendant on participation in bargaining negotiations of the Southern producers.

In short, Mr. Lewis wants to pick and choose the men who are to represent the operators. His intention has been evidenced by his assertion that two men, Benjamin F. Fairless, president of United States Steel, and George Humphrey, chairman of the board of Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co., can decide whether the miners work or walk out when their contract expires. If they elect to make an agreement, he says producers controlling Southern, Midwestern and Far Western tonnage "would have no alternative but to follow—just the same as happened in 1947."

Mr. Fairless, who, together with Mr. Humphrey, took the lead in negotiating the present agreement, which expires next June, has studiously avoided the limelight of late, for good reason. Big Steel recently cut prices on its products and refused to grant wage increases to the steelworkers. If Mr. Fairless were to take an active part in negotiating a new contract with the UMW calling for wage increases for employes of the company's (captive) mines, he would be in a most awkward position. From present indications, therefore, it is not at all likely that he can be lured into repeating his performance of last year.

There is a possibility that the Southern producers' charge that Mr. Lewis has violated the Taft-Hartley Act by refusing to bargain may result in issuance of a court order to bargain with them. But enforced bargaining of this sort offers slight hope of a peaceful settlement. From present indications, assuming the Northern operators remain firm in their opposition to separate negotiations, there will be another mine walkout when the present contract expires.

Home-Rule Issue

As the House takes up the District home-rule bill today, we hope that every member will note one all-important fact: this is a restoration bill. It would not create an unprecedented novelty. Its primary purpose is to restore to the District a modernized version of the local government that existed here from 1802 to 1874. Even the authorization to elect a District delegate to aid Congress in legislating for the District is merely a return to the arrangement that existed under the so-called territorial government following the Civil War.

It can properly be said that the bill would put into effect much of what the founding fathers contemplated for the Nation's Capital. Madison said that "a municipal legislature for local purposes, derived from their own suffrages," would of course be allowed to residents of the District. And after the Federal Government moved here in 1800 Congress hastened to set up local governments based on the indisputable right of the people to choose their own rulers. Even after Governor Shepherd, who, incidentally, was an appointed official, had plunged the city into virtual bankruptcy in 1874, and a congressional investigation showed the necessity for radical changes in the local government, Congress apparently had no intention of abolishing suffrage here. In the bills creating a new District government the House proposed an elected council and the Senate favored an elected delegate in Congress. Their failure to agree as the end of the session approached resulted in the elimination of all provisions for the exercise of suffrage rights here, and that shabby, un-American compromise has been allowed to stand for 74 years.

Today the House will have a chance to undo that mistake and welcome the District back into the circle of American voting communities. It is not, however, solely an issue of suffrage. Since the regime of Governor Shepherd was abolished, great strides have been made by American cities in the organization and administration of municipal services. In the last 40 years more than 800 American cities and towns have adopted the council-manager system, which combines democratic control with expert administration largely divorced from partisan politics. Washington has had no part in this progressive movement. It is still operating under the old defective charter that was set up as a makeshift three quarters of a century ago. At least six groups of experts have condemned this incredibly confused and cumbersome hodgepodge in recent years. It remained for the Auchincloss committee, however, to adapt the council-manager system to the peculiar needs of the District in a bill that commands widespread support.

The bill also clarifies the relationship between the Federal and District governments by the sensible method of assigning national functions to Federal agencies and local functions to District agencies. It makes provision for a simple and automatic method of determining the Federal payment to the Capital each year. Many District residents believe that the formula works to their disadvantage. Since it would limit the Federal payment to 14 per cent of District revenue collected the previous year, the present ratio, and carries an over-all ceiling of 15 million dollars on the Federal payment, it certainly cannot be regarded as overly generous on the part of Congress.

Other notable gains would be the creation of an elected Board of Education and a joint Senate-House committee to handle all District legislation and constantly to police the local government. We are confident that enactment of the bill would relieve Congress of an unpleasant duty and immeasurably improve the quality of local government in this nerve center of the Nation. The measure is the product of extensive research and careful draftsmanship. Whatever novelty it has stems from the necessity of adjusting sound and tried governmental patterns to the unique status of this Capital City. In our opinion, it is by far the best adaptation of American principles to the needs of this community that has been achieved in the entire history of the District.

The bill demands thoughtful and open-minded consideration in the House. The issue it raises is nothing less than extension of the American system of government to more than 850,000 loyal citizens now denied their birthright. We urge the House to debate the issue in this light and to let the decision fit the principles on which our national unity and our world prestige are founded.

Protest To Lebanon

The War of 1812 was due in large part to the resentment aroused by the British practice of searching American vessels for British seamen and deserters from British naval vessels—a proceeding that frequently resulted in American seamen as well as British subjects being carried off. The Lebanese government does not have even the excuse of mistaken identity to offer in defense of its outrageous action in removing American citizens from a vessel flying the flag of the United States. Its only excuse appears to be fear that the American Jews who were forcibly removed and interned might join the Jewish fighting forces in Palestine.

So gross a violation of the rules governing international intercourse between nations at peace is indefensible. Failure to respond to the demand of the United States for return of the captives would justify the severest kind of reprisals. Yet it seems to us that the State Department's protest ignores the major issue by emphasizing the fact that all bearers of American passports, irrespective of race, color or creed, are entitled to equal protection of the laws of the United States. Of course they are. But so far as we can see the Lebanese have not been guilty of discrimination in the way suggested by the State Department's communication. Only Jews were seized, to be sure, but that was because it was only Jews whom the Lebanese had reason to fear as potential fighters. The offense of the Lebanese government that calls for rebuke is its invasion of American territory by boarding an American vessel and taking away American citizens. It is merely confusing to drag in an issue that is utterly irrelevant, insofar as the present controversy is concerned.

Restored Freedom

Employers are once more free to assemble their employes and advise them not to join a union, if the speech contains no threat of reprisal or force or promise of benefit. This ruling of the NLRB last week in the case of the Babcock & Wilcox Co. vs. the United Stone Workers is the first application of the "free speech" clause of the Taft-Hartley Act. In our opinion, it will meet with general approval, except among those who are willing to suppress freedom of speech to promote unionism.

In the Clark Brothers case, decided in August, 1946, the board had ruled that it was an unfair labor practice for an employer to convene a compulsory audience of employes on company time and property and deliver an antiunion speech. Here was an unwarranted encroachment upon freedom of speech. When employers use speech to coerce their employes and thus interfere with their right of organization for collective bargaining purposes, the right of Congress to restrain them through the NLRB is unmistakable. Indeed, coercion under the guise of freedom of speech remains an unfair labor practice under the Taft-Hartley Act. But when the coercive element is absent, when the employer reasons with or preaches to his employes, without threatening them or promising them rewards for rejecting a union, it seems to us that he is within his rights guaranteed by the First Amendment to the Constitution.

It is no credit to the NLRB that Congress had to write into the law a special clause to secure recognition of the employer's freedom of speech in circumstances of this kind. But the three-man panel of the NLRB which has now reversed the previous ruling is entitled to credit for faithfully carrying out the new instructions of Congress.

Loyalty Criteria

After another wrong-footed start in their program to investigate the loyalty of District employes, the Commissioners have released the criteria by which jobs sensitive to the national security will be determined. The refusal of Engineer Commissioner Young at first to disclose these standards did not conform to sound democratic practice. It was of a piece with the earlier efforts of Commissioner J. Russell Young to secure a blanket scrutiny of all District employes. Fortunately, the Commissioners were diverted from such a policy by the recommendation of their loyalty committee to restrict the probe to sensitive jobs.

General Young has listed five categories into which sensitive jobs may fall. They include (1) posts in which employes have access to machinery the sabotage of which would imperil the city, such as the waterworks; (2) jobs involving the handling of material that might be used for large-scale destruction, such as explosives; (3) jobs calling for freer-than-usual access to sensitive Federal offices; (4) jobs whose holders carry lethal weapons, including, presumably, members of the Police Department; and (5) persons who possess or have access to classified information that might have a damaging effect on national defense.

The question which is now of prime importance to the peace of mind of District employes is just who is to do the investigating. The Commissioners have been notoriously close-mouthed on this point since the initial plan to commandeer the services of the Police Department backfired. If there is actual need to question the inner reaches of the loyalty here, then certainly the task is one calling for investigators of the greatest skill, and the Commissioners could dispel a lot of misgivings and demoralization by announcing publicly how and on what basis the probes are to be conducted. To date they have given the impression that they are so anxious to jump on the loyalty bandwagon that they have not given sufficient attention to the elementary safeguards to which the disfranchised citizens of the District are entitled.

Tariff Anomaly

Your May 17 analysis with respect to reciprocal trade policy was excellent as usual, but far from complete.

The Republican Party has always embraced the principles of protectionism, the technical name for high tariffs. Protectionism is a holdover from the days of mercantilism, which flourished in Great Britain during the eighteenth century.

In the course of time Britain found that protectionism was not a sound policy. As her industry grew, protected by the high tariff wall, and gold was collected in large quantities, the remainder of the world was being drained of wealth. Britain's market for finished goods dwindled. In order to maintain the level of production of her industries gained through high tariffs, Britain was forced to become a free trade nation.

In other words, high tariffs had served their purpose in getting industry started, but had outlived their usefulness by preventing further expansion, and a healthy world commerce. This is the same position in which the United States finds itself today, especially with respect to a healthy world commerce.

Free trade means very little or no protective tariff. The result of free trade is competition on a world-wide basis, each area producing those goods for which it is best suited, with regard to maximum efficiency and lowest cost. In other words every country has a chance to progress, and create a satisfactory standard of living for itself on a basis of competitive enterprise, which is the American way of life.

Ironically enough the United States, which has espoused capitalism and free enterprise, is the power that denies the remainder of the world a chance to survive, by maintaining a policy of protectionism.

The Republican Party is mainly responsible for this situation. The Democratic Party, especially since 1934, has been the free trade party. Former Secretary of State Cordell Hull's reciprocal trade treaties were the measure achieved by the Democrats. These treaties have gone a long way toward creating goodwill and prosperity in less industrialized nations.

Here we are today, lending money to Europe to reconstruct her economy, while at the same time we raise our tariff walls to deny them a market for the goods produced by a sound economy. There can be no future to a policy of this kind.

Social Security Coverage

Has the press failed to get wind of the fact that the Congress is now considering the most restrictive action against social security coverage since the inception of the legislation in 1935? Last year, the United States Supreme Court rendered sweeping decisions in the cases of United States v. Albert Silk, and Harrison v. Greyvan Lines (67 S. Ct. 1463); and Bartels, et al v. Birmingham (67 S. Ct. 1547). Pursuant to these decisions, upward of a million workers, including commission salesmen, pieceworkers and others on a nonsalary basis, fall within the old-age benefit provisions of the present law.

Now, in the perpetration of an insidious farce, the House has passed H. J. Resolution 296 "to maintain the status quo in respect of certain employment taxes and social security benefits pending action by Congress on extended social security coverage." Passage of this bill was based upon a surreptitious finding by the members of the present Congress that the Supreme Court misconstrued the intent of the Democratic Congress which passed the original legislation. The Senate is expected to pass a companion measure in the near future.

In the first place, any discerning person knows that the present Congress has no intention of extending benefits where, to do so, would result in taxation upon industry; but the amazing point is that these bills, these subtle concoctions of industrial pressure groups, do not even attempt to maintain the "status quo," as advertised in their titles. On the contrary, they will abrogate the interpretation of the judicial branch, thereby excluding from employer-paid coverage a vast field of individuals who are entitled to benefits under the present Social Security Act.

A "generous" gesture may be made by the Legislature toward including the self-employed (who would pay for their own benefits), domestics (where the housewife would pay) and employes of tax-exempt organizations (if they "elect" to pay); but the action of usurping the powers of the Supreme Court will not be remedied.

Why should not the public be informed of the fraud which is being foisted upon it?

Hawaiian Statehood

Your editorials urging the early passage of legislation providing for Statehood for Hawaii, are given front page space in our local papers.

I'm sure the great majority of people in Hawaii are very grateful. We need help now more than ever before. Our cause is just. The attainment of our political rights as American citizens has long been delayed by public apathy rather than by actual opposition. Congress must be "given the word," clearly, forcefully, and unmistakably, by the people, that the political subjugation of a half million American citizens will no longer be tolerated. Congress already knows from evidence compiled by many investigations that the Territory is ready, willing, able and deserving. It remains only to spur the members to action.

Our Delegate in Washington is speaking and working for the overwhelming majority of us here. He has been working against heavy odds in Congress because of the peculiarity of his position as a Delegate, alone, and without voting privileges. I am sure he is grateful for your actions. Please do not stop now. Keep on fighting with us. RICHARD E. TUTT.

Transposed Composers

While I agree, in general, with your critic's estimation of Production, Inc.'s, performance of Themes and Variations, at the King-Smith School, I should also like to say that, judging from his review in The Washington Post of May 20, he should stick to drama criticism and leave the subject of music to the proper hands.

The score for The Plow That Broke the Plains was composed by Virgil Thomson, and not by Deems Taylor, as Mr. Coe so glibly states.

Jackson And The Spoils Myth

"Andrew Jackson," said H. B. Seim in The Washington Post of May 16, "was swept into the White House in 1828 as a man of the people, but by the end of his first term his popularity was near zero in New England, at least."

This is sheer nonsense. Jackson was not only more popular at the end of his first term—in New England as in the Nation as a whole—but he is the only President on record to go out of office more popular than when he went in.

His tour of New England, just after the close of his first term, was a tour of triumph. Invading a supposed Whig stronghold, thousands lined the streets of cities and towns to hail him. Even Harvard honored him with a doctor of laws degree.

But greater yet was the test of the ballots. In his first election, Old Hickory lost all of New England by a resounding majority. Four years later he carried Maine and New Hampshire over Clay. In Massachusetts he cut down his margin of defeat from about 5 to 1 to 2 to 1; in Connecticut from 3 to 1 to 1½ to 1; in Vermont from 3 to 1 to less than 2 to 1, and Rhode Island—which in his first election had defeated him by more than 3 to 1—he lost by only 684 votes!

So much for this myth about Jackson's popularity sinking to zero. Jackson was more than a great President. He was and is a symbol of the best and finest in all America.

Mr. Seim is only echoing the view of hundreds of Whig historians who, as Claude Bowers once put it, "have distorted American history almost beyond recognition." They perpetrated many myths about Jackson—the chief of which was that Jackson was the founder of the spoils system. Actually, Jefferson's removals were greater, proportionately, than Jackson's. Out of 433 postmasters of the presidential class, Jefferson replaced 109. He removed 14 district attorneys out of 22, 15 marshals out of 22, 41 collectors out of 82, 18 surveyors out of 30, and 67 miscellaneous out of 150.

Yet while Jefferson removed 1 postmaster out of every 4, Jackson removed only 1 out of every 15. And out of some 11,000 officeholders in Jackson's regime, a total of 919 were removed.

Is this a spoils system? And what shall we say of John Quincy Adams, who had cause to make few removals, but who a few hours after midnight on March 3, 1829, just when he was going out of office, sent 78 nominations to the Senate, 40 of which were confirmed after Jackson was inaugurated?

The myth about Jackson and the spoils system grew out of a speech by Senator Holmes of Maine in the Senate in April, 1830. Holmes produced figures which investigation proved false, but only in the last few years have historians conceded that Jackson erred less than both Jefferson and Lincoln on the matter of spoils. The spoils system was a matter of gradual growth, and no one President can be singled out for special blame.

The measure of the man, Jackson, therefore, cannot be taken by the modest degree to which he continued the spoils system, but by his tremendous positive achievements: the paying off of the national debt, the destruction of the first great banking monopoly to arise in the United States, the forthright strategy that averted war with France, the conquest of the "nullification" threat, the courageous but unsuccessful effort to end speculation in the public lands, and, above all, the leadership that raised the United States to the rank of a world power.

For eight long years he fought monopoly and special privilege. He fought for the people, not the bankers; for the settlers, not the speculators. And don't let anybody tell you the people didn't love him!

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

Oregon Footnotes

SAN FRANCISCO.—For Harold Stassen the question has now become whether the Republican nomination can be secured, not for himself, but for Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg or some other Republican who is not a bitter Stassen enemy. For Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the question now is whether his restarted bandwagon can gain enough momentum to break through a Philadelphia deadlock and carry him to nomination.

Oregon, following hard upon Ohio, has in fact neatly reversed the allocation of roles in the Republican political drama which seemed to have been made in Wisconsin and Nebraska. For a few weeks, Dewey and Senator Robert A. Taft were gathering their strength to stop Stassen. Now it is Stassen who must, and unquestionably will, prepare to use all his resources in order to stop Dewey. For the Republican front-runner is now Dewey. And Stassen already knows that one of Dewey's dearest pleasures and first endeavors will be to chase him from the national scene.

By dramatically reversing a sharply unfavorable situation, Dewey has scored an undoubted personal success of the first order. The effects of Wisconsin and Nebraska are now virtually wiped out. Dewey's political managers can assert that Dewey failed in Wisconsin and Nebraska because he was too busy for an intensive personal campaign comparable to Stassen's. They can say, and beyond doubt are now saying, that Oregon has shown Dewey's real stuff, when he rolls up his sleeves and goes after the vote. Because the Oregon electorate is a highly representative, middle-of-the-road Republican electorate, the effect will be all the greater.

DEWEY has, in short, won a very solid, very vital victory. Yet one cannot help recalling one observer's shrewd verdict on Ohio, that the real Ohio winner was neither Stassen nor Taft, but Vandenberg. Here again in Oregon, while Dewey has won, Vandenberg has won also. Significantly enough, this was bound to be true, whatever the outcome. This correspondent left Portland before the voting, but not before both the Dewey and the Stassen camps had begun to consider what they would do if defeated. In both camps, lining up behind Vandenberg was considered the obvious strategy.

For Stassen to try to promote the choice of Vandenberg and himself hope for second place on the ticket will be merely to revert to the tactics he had in mind before Wisconsin sent his hopes soaring. But there are other more complex factors to consider. Vandenberg is also on the whole preferred to any of the competing candidates by Taft and his backers of the Republican conservative wing. The Michigan delegation, together with a large number of Pennsylvania's valuable herd of political livestock, must already be considered as assets of the draft-Vandenberg planners. And one wonders whether Dewey himself, who would claw any other rival's eyes out to get the nomination, will make the kind of all-out fight against Vandenberg that leaves deep scars behind.

There are several points here to consider. First, Dewey wants above all to be President, is still a young man, but cannot again make a bid for the White House from the New York executive mansion. Second, at least one faction of the draft-Vandenberg planners began thinking weeks ago of offering Dewey the Vice Presidential spot, with the special task, for which he is well fitted, of carrying out the reorganization of the Federal Government on the basis of the recommendations of President Hoover's special commission. This would make the Vice Presidency an extremely active job, rather than a mere empty honor.

THIRD, Vandenberg himself has let it be known he would serve only one term, which would open the way for Dewey again in 1952. And fourth, there were indications a few days ago that in the event of defeat in Oregon, Dewey himself was thinking favorably of second place on a Vandenberg ticket. Victory in Oregon may cause Dewey to forget the advantages he had begun to teach himself to see in such an arrangement.

Stassen's slugging fight for the nomination has made him the object of much personal enmity. Senator Vandenberg, if drafted, would want the maximum of party unity and is thus quite likely to prefer Dewey as a running mate. Any wager on the Philadelphia outcome is a long shot, but long shot gamblers might do worse than a parlay on a Vandenberg-Dewey ticket.

Only one other thing remains to be said about the Oregon primary. The issue in the campaign, as publicly proclaimed by both Dewey and Stassen, was Stassen's proposal to suppress the Communist Party. Stassen was defeated on that issue. The fact that this proposal was thus rejected does credit to the political decency, and above all the common sense, of the voters. It should also be taken as a warning by the kind of Republicans and reactionary Democrats who think there is political capital to be made by wallowing in cheap appeals to prejudice and vulgar political sensationalism. Being Parnell Thomas does not pay in the long run.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Taking Our Bearings

Lippmann

IN A FEW weeks Secretary Marshall will have gotten from Congress all the money, weapons, soldiers and legal authorizations he can expect to get,—unless there is a new crisis and emergency,—during the remainder of the Truman Administration.

The national resources put at his disposal for the support of foreign policy will be large, larger indeed than any that have ever been made available, except in wartime, to this or any other Government.

But the amount of money and of the weapons will not be unlimited. It will have been fixed. Moreover, most of the money will have been committed and, therefore, in a very real sense its diplomatic effect will have been discounted. The weapons and the troops will also have been committed by the strategical doctrine of our armed forces.

The influence of the Marshall Plan and of the rearmament program will still be great. But it will not be what it was when they were proposals when, because, they were unknown and uncertain quantities, they aroused hopes and fears which could not be measured.

FOR THE period of the election Mr. Marshall will be in the position of a general who knows the limits of the material forces at his command, and must now make the most of them by planning, leadership, and morale. Congress will have supplied him with money and weapons. But he and the State Department will have to supply the political insight and judgment and resourcefulness, and the diplomatic knowhow.

If, as the saying goes, the moral is to the material in war as three is to one, the ratio is at least that in a cold war and in the struggle for reconstruction and peace.

SEEN AGAINST the background of the election, the adjournment of Congress, the long critical months of the coming summer and autumn, the recent episodes—Smith-Molotov, Wallace-Stalin, and the Truman-Marshall public reactions to them—cannot be written off as nothing more than Russian propaganda on the one hand and diplomatic inexpertness on the other. For the net result of the Administration's negatives has been to disclose a grave deficiency—the lack of an affirmative political policy with which to make use of the money and the arms placed at its disposal.

After Mr. Marshall had said No, No, to Molotov and Stalin, there was an embarrassing silence because he was not prepared to say anything interesting to the world which was waiting so eagerly for him to say something.

THE Administration is proceeding on the theory that it can not do anything, or even say anything, on the great issues which divide the world until western Europe is economically stronger, until it is united in a military alliance, until western Germany has a government and is a going concern, and until American military power has been reestablished. This theory, though plausible, is defective, lacking political energy, and we can already see that it is not going to work.

The European cooperation envisaged by the Marshall Plan is less promising today than it was before the bill was voted: the separatist and nationalistic and isolationist forces in Europe are very active, no longer so restrained as they were by the need to placate American opinion. The project of Western Union and the Brussels pact is very near to being stalled, largely because the Administration's military program does not in fact carry out, as Europeans understood it, the President's promise to support a Western Union.

IT IS unlikely, therefore, that Mr. Marshall will be able to carry on through the next few months on the assumption that the excellent and necessary measures already taken will gradually redress the balance of power, and that in the meantime he can deal with comparatively small issues, like Berlin, Korea, Greece, taking no positive position on the really great issues which arise from the division of Europe.

For in the meantime he will be losing—there is evidence that he is losing—the confidence of the great masses of the people of Europe.

This is not to say that they are becoming more Communist, quite the contrary. But there is good reason to think that they are beginning to doubt more and more strongly whether this Administration knows how, or even very earnestly wants to know how, to give them peace and relief from the burden of military occupation and military pressure.

The negative attitude taken by Mr. Marshall recently, coupled with the strategic ideas which underlie American rearmament, are profoundly disturbing to the peoples of Europe.

They still prefer us, no doubt, to the Russians but, to be frank about it, not because we are inspiring hope and confidence, but as the giver of benefits and as the lesser of two evils.

FOR WE are not identified, as we could be and should be, with the one thing which more people on both sides of the iron curtain want more than they want anything else—the liberation of the European continent from the grip of the non-European armies, and the return of Europe to the Europeans. If we were, our influence would rest not only on dollars and the atomic bomb, but upon the aspirations of Europe.

When, for example, the Austrians hear through inspired newspaper articles that we do not want an Austrian peace treaty because we do not want, for fear of communism, to end the military occupation, we have let ourselves be maneuvered into a position which is in the long run untenable.

THUS we have let ourselves become identified with the prolongation, and not with the ending, of the very thing which proud and civilized people resent the most—the presence in their midst of alien armies, and the taking for granted of the idea that their lands and cities and their national destiny are to be treated as the stakes in a diplomatic struggle which is directed from distant places.

Tidelands Oil

A Communication

WHAT ABOUT this question of "offshore" or "tidelands" oil? Is it fair to say, as does your editorial of April 29, that the bill pending before Congress to restore these tidelands to the States will constitute "giving away a priceless national inheritance"?

From whom did the Nation inherit? And will these tidelands become any the less priceless when restored to their rightful owners, the several States, to whom the Supreme Court, in an unbroken line of decisions during more than a hundred years, held them to belong?

Long prior to the decision by a divided court in June, 1947, that California is not the owner of the 3-mile marginal belt along its coast and that the Federal Government rather than the State has paramount rights in and power over that belt, "an incident to which is full dominion over the resources of the soil under that water area, including oil," the Supreme Court had held that "title in the soil of the sea, or arms of the sea, below ordinary high water mark is vested in the several States."

As far back as 1842 the court said the sovereign States "hold absolute right to all their navigable waters and the soils under them . . . "; and in Pollard vs. Hagen (1845) it was held that "the shores of navigable waters, and the soils under them, were not granted by the Constitution to the United States, but were reserved to the States respectively." The Pollard case has been cited by the Supreme Court 52 times during the past 100 years. The principles stated therein have become a rule of property under which thousands of titles have been vested.

UNTIL the decision in the California case (332 U. S. 19) last June, the President, the Attorney General and all executive departments of the Government during 171 years had recognized State ownership of all submerged lands within State boundaries and billions of dollars have been invested in oil wells, docks, warehouses, etc., on the supposition that such long-recognized Constitutional rights of ownership in the State would remain forever inviolable.

The action of the majority of the Supreme Court in the California Case, therefore, may be aptly described as "title jumping" with a vengeance. If the Federal Government rather than the States has paramount rights over the soil of the marginal sea, transcending those of a mere property owner, and may take oil therefrom without regard to present ownership, then, as Justice Frankfurter pointed out in his dissent, similar paramount rights may be asserted to uranium deposits wherever they may be located; or to coal, tin, gold, silver mines or any other commodity which is or may be found to be essential in war.

The decision of the majority in the California case not only puts in jeopardy titles to oil producing properties in the three-mile belt along the coast but also the ownership of the filled-in land on which a considerable part of the City of San Francisco has been built. Likewise it clouds the titles to properties of immense importance in other States.

Thus, the City of Milwaukee and other cities on the Great Lakes have been granted by their States many hundreds of acres which have been developed through the expenditure of many millions of dollars. The decision also puts in doubt the titles to property in a large part of Louisiana. Indeed, no State in the Union is wholly unaffected by this decision.

TO SAY that the bill to correct this decision, recently passed by the House by a vote of 257-29, was induced by a "frenzied" and "emotional" but "wholly irrelevant attachment to 'State rights' and by the pressure of interested oil companies," is hardly to be regarded as fair argument. The American Bar Association, after full study by a well qualified committee of outstanding lawyers and after full debate in its House of Delegates, approved S. 1988 and the declaration contained therein "that the several States, and the others as hereinafter mentioned, since July 4, 1776, or since their formation and admission to the Union, have exercised full powers of ownership of all lands beneath navigable waters within their respective boundaries and all natural resources within such lands and waters . . ."

You say "a tremendous pressure" is being exerted by organized State Attorneys General and Governors, united on a theory of protecting "State rights," and assert that in view of the Supreme Court decision of last June "this issue of State rights has little substance." On the contrary, I respectfully submit, it is because of this Supreme Court decision that the issue of State rights acquires greater substance than ever before.

ON THE question of preserving State rights and limiting the powers of the Federal Government to those expressly delegated by the Constitution, no one was more determined than was Jefferson, or more frequently and clearly expressed his convictions that this was fundamental to the preservation of the Union and the prevention of usurpation and tyranny. One expression typical of many others is contained in Jefferson's letter of January 26, 1799, to Elbridge Gerry:

"I am for preserving to the States the powers now yielded by them to the Union, and to the Legislature of the Union its constitutional share in the division of powers; and I am not for transferring all the powers of the States to the general government, and all those of that Government to the executive branch."

It is well to bear in mind that most of the evils from which the world suffers today exist by reason of the usurpation of power by totalitarians like Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin. It is to be hoped that we shall never need the State captals as rallying points to resist like concentration of power in Washington. But it must have been some such fear that led John Marshall to declare that "no political dreamer was ever wild enough to think of breaking down the lines which separate the States, and of compounding the American people into one common mass."

CHARLES D. DRAYTON.
Washington.

Editor's note: The Department of Justice has not challenged and the Supreme Court has in no way altered the dictum that "title in the soil of the sea, or arms of the sea, below ordinary high water mark is vested in the several States." Title to the tidelands was not called into question by the Court's recent decision. Neither was title to inland waters. "Ownership of the filled-in land on which a considerable part of the City of San Francisco has been built" was placed in no jeopardy whatever. These are bugbears conjured up to frighten the credulous.

The only submerged land to which the Supreme Court declared that California had no Government had paramount rights is the marginal sea—the belt lying outside inland waters and the tidelands between low-tide and the 3-mile limit. This is a national inheritance in that possession of it became an attribute of the Nation's sovereignty with the founding of the Republic; and the inheritance has been transmitted from generation to generation of the people of the United States.

Battle Lines Form On Tariff Measure

By The Associated Press

Historic tariff battle lines were drawn once more yesterday when Republicans and Democrats issued flatly disagreeing reports on the GOP-backed reciprocal trade bill set for action Wednesday.

Gearhart

Fifteen Republicans said it "provided needed safeguards for the protection of domestic industry, agriculture and labor."

Nine Democrats called it "a clear and deliberate effort to sabotage and smash the reciprocal trade program."

The statements were embodied in majority and minority reports to the House from the tariff-framing Ways and Means Committee, with the two parties—historically at odds on the tariff issue—now again taking opposite stands.

Gearhart's Statement

Representative Gearhart (R., Calif.), author of the Republican bill, issued a separate statement saying "even a permanent extension (of the Trade Act) would mean absolutely nothing if the next Administration chooses not to use it."

The Gearhart bill proposes that the Trade Act be extended for only one year and that Congress take a veto power if the President exceeds bounds set by the Tariff Commission in adjusting tariffs. Mr. Truman has asked for continuation of the Act "as is" for three years. It is scheduled to expire June 12.

The present act permits the State Department, under the President's supervision, to lower American tariffs if other countries, in reciprocal trade pacts, agree to bring down their trade barriers. Such agreements are put into effect by presidential proclamation, without reference to Congress.

Over the weekend a break became evident in Republican thinking on the tariff issue. Alf Landon, GOP standard bearer in 1936, blasted the Republican bill and called for a three-year extension of the trade act "as is."

But the 15 Republican Ways and Means members said the Gearhart bill "improves the administrative machinery for the determination of articles on which concessions in our tariff may be made with safety."

Gearhart said he believes there is little opposition to his bill and disputed those who contend it would delay negotiating of trade agreements. The Democrats said:

1. Enactment of the bill "would kill the reciprocal-trade-agreements program as a major instrument of foreign policy by prescribing preliminary procedures involving interminable delays."

2. It would "make possible the imposition of tariff rates 50 per cent higher than the rates of the Hawley-Smoot Tariff Act of 1930, which resulted in the stagnation of trade and commerce."

Prices Climb But Wages Are Leveling

By the United Press

Prices are climbing steadily but wage increases show signs of leveling off, the Department of Commerce reported yesterday.

With steel and other scarce materials being diverted to arms production, consumers may find it harder to buy automobiles and other durable goods, a department survey said. Heavy-goods factories are running far behind on filling orders, and the cutback of steel production during the coal strike has made matters worse.

But the department said that any prospect of recession, and lower prices, disappeared after the foreign aid and arms programs began to take shape in March.

During April retail sales, which started to "flatten out," exceeded the high set at the end of 1947.

Gaining at the rate of 1,500,000 a month over similar 1947 periods employment is expected to top the 60,079,000 all-time high of last July. More than 58,330,000 Americans are now at work.

Commodity prices advanced during April and early May. Farm and food products continued to go up, recovering from the February slump. Clothing and leather products rose after a decline.

In Calvert County, a campaign started against slot machines fizzled out early this month when the State dropped gambling charges against 40 store and tavern owners.

Further action on the gambling situation may develop during the special session of the Maryland General Assembly which will convene Tuesday. One bill would legalize and license slot machines in Calvert County.

Jobs Aplenty Await Graduates

By the United Press

More than 200,000 college graduates, an all-time record, will "commence" their adult careers in the next few weeks.

They will find plenty of jobs available, but not necessarily the kind they are looking for.

That was the forecast issued yesterday by two Federal agencies that keep tab on such things—the United States Office of Education and the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The education office said it was difficult to estimate in advance just how many sheepskins the Nation's colleges and universities would give out because so many veterans were included. The veterans returned to school at various levels of advancement, and upset the system of calculating the number of graduates by the size of the previous fall's enrollment.

As for the job outlook, the overall situation is highly promising, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

Commissioner Ewan Clague predicted recently that total United States employment would soar this summer above the all-time record of 60 million jobs reached last year. And Clague emphasized that the business expansion expected from the European recovery program and the stepped-up defense program may further increase the demand for workers.

But this optimistic outlook doesn't necessarily mean that college graduates will be able to find a "good job" in just the field they want to enter. Each graduating class lessens the jobs in most professional fields.

'Public Blundering' Laid to Crawford

Dr. A. Powell Davies, Washington Unitarian minister, yesterday charged a Congressman with "public blundering" and suggested the formation of a congressional "committee on unintelligent activities."

Dr. Davies

Representative Fred L. Crawford's demand that a Commerce Department official resign because his daughter was employed by Tass, Russian news agency, was cited by Dr. Davies as "public blundering and the clumsy handling of a painful and sensitive personal relationship."

The official, John C. Virden, Commerce Department Director of Industry Cooperation, quit Friday after the Michigan Republican demanded his resignation. Virden's 22-year-old daughter Euphemia is a teletype operator for Tass here.

Speaking at All Souls Unitarian Church, 16th and Harvard sts. nw., Dr. Davis yesterday characterized Crawford's action as "gross obtuseness" which showed "a lack of common insight."

"What an encouragement to the Communist Party!" he continued, referring to the demand as "a boom to the Kremlin."

"It sometimes seems to me that in addition to the category of Communist collaborators known as fellow-travelers, we ought to recognize a second category which might be known as fellow-hinderers or fellow-blunderers," the minister declared. "They impede our democratic hopes and purposes just as much as the fellow-travelers do and they are even more useful to the Communists."

"Perhaps it would be a good idea if Congress set up a committee on the subject; it could be called the committee on unintelligent activities," he said.

Dr. Davies' reference to the incident came in a sermon on "Personal Relationships in a Time of Crisis."

The pastor made headlines last year when he branded as "utterly loathsome" a picture of Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy cutting a cake in the shape of an atomic bomb explosion. Later he again received national attention when he called longer skirts "immoral, moronic, and a crime against decency" because they waste desperately needed material.

Pastor Denies Nation's Trend Is Military

The pastor of the National Presbyterian Church yesterday denied charges that the United States is becoming militarized.

In his sermon, the Rev. L. R. Elson defended the need for universal military training and rejected assertions of some churchmen that a "military mind" is gaining control of the Nation.

Statements that our youth are "frustrated" by suggestions of a temporary draft or universal training program, he said, are a "libel against our youth."

"If our youth are as frustrated as some clergymen declare," he said, "then we are failing to educate them in their social responsibility and civic duty—including, in times of necessity—military service."

Move in Opposite Direction

Religious journals and churchmen often state that our Government has been "militarized," Dr. Elson said. What they should say, he declared, is that "there has been a 'civilianization' of the military—an infiltration of the military services by civilians until the old-time professional military leader has become a minority influence."

Dr. Elson said that many religious leaders have asserted that the draft and UMT are being "foisted" upon the American people or that we are being "stampeded" into adopting the program.

"This is a gross misrepresentation of the American character and an affront to our civic intelligence," he asserted.

Praises Marshall Plan

Dr. Elson rejected the term "military mind" as used by churchmen. He cited the Marshall Plan —"the most significant legislation in all our history for social and economic amelioration"—as proof that military leaders as well as churchmen are aware of our primary tasks in the world.

"We should seek to make America as a nation morally, diplomatically, and militarily strong enough to discharge the heavy responsibility God in His providence has imposed upon us," he concluded.

Philadelphian Named PM Managing Editor

New York, May 23 (AP).—Jay Odell, 36, assistant telegraph editor of the Philadelphia Inquirer, has been named managing editor of the newspaper PM.

This was announced today by Joseph Barnes, PM's co-owner and editor.

Odell, who succeeds Rae Weimer, formerly was a reporter for the St. Paul Pioneer-Press. He joined the copy desk of the Inquirer in 1937. During the war he served as a naval air intelligence officer.

Barnes also announced there would be "many more changes" in the near future.

Columbia Opera, Dramatic Group Announces Plans

Formation of the Columbia Opera and Dramatic Association, which plans to present a year-round program here of grand and light opera, drama and ballet, was announced yesterday.

Acting President and Director Ethyl Manning said the Columbia Light Opera Company will form the nucleus of the new association and dramatic and ballet groups will be added soon. Under present plans, each of the three participating units will present productions every three months, with a total of 12 presentations scheduled within a year.

Patrons and persons interested in membership were invited to inquire at the association at 819 13th st. nw., or telephone Republic 3010.

Civil Air Patrol Lists Congressional Dinner

The National Civil Air Patrol will hold its third annual congressional dinner Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. at the Mayflower Hotel. A cocktail party will precede the dinner.

The first dinner was held in 1946 shortly before the Seventy-ninth Congress passed legislation to charter the CAP.

VMI Cavalry To Carry Last Guidon in June

Lexington, Va., May 23 (AP).—The passing parade overtakes the colorful, high-stepping horses of the Virginia Military Institute on June 30, and the mounted cavalry will be no more.

The colorful era, which has seen horses at VMI parades since 1919, actually will be reached when the dwindling group of horses make their final appearance in a VMI parade during the review at finals on June 7.

Government support of the horses, which once numbered 200 and now have dwindled to less than 60, will be withdrawn the last of June. The Army, concentrating on building a 70-group Air Force, did not request from Congress appropriations to maintain horses at ROTC schools.

The end of the VMI cavalry almost came a year ago. Only a last-minute appeal in Congress by Senator A. Willis Robertson kept the horses at VMI for another year. But the handwriting has been on the wall since 1942.

Time was when every VMI cadet was taught horsemanship as part of his ROTC training. That was started when the horses first arrived, and the training continued up to the war year of 1942.

The horses played a prominent part in parades. Many of the cadets rode for pleasure, and the mountain trails surrounding Lexington contained riding parties on Sunday afternoons. During the years 1937-42, VMI had what was believed to be the only college hunt club in the country.

The appearance of the cadets on horseback, holding their lances with the streaming guidons on June 7 will mark the end of mounted cavalry at VMI.

Fish Commission Ouster Takes Md. Spotlight

Annapolis, Md., May 23 (AP).—Speculation over introduction of a "ripper bill" removing the present three members of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission overshadows the orginial purpose for which Maryland's General Assembly will convene Tuesday.

Governor Lane called the special session, third in as many years, primarily to give State employes 10 per cent salary increases estimated to cost $2,101,654.

But about 60 bills are ready for introduction.

The proposed "ripper bill" overshadowed them all. It is suggested as the answer to a continuing controversy that has split the Tidewate Commission wide open for the last several months.

Several other proposals are expected to produce wrangling. Among these are the State Department of Public Welfare's request for $2,750,757 in additional funds and a bill to legalize raffles for benefit purposes.

Governor Lane said he would recommend only $500,000 in extra welfare funds.

The welfare department received a timely pat on the back from the Commission on Governmental Efficiency and Economy, which reported Saturday it was being conducted "efficiently and economically in the best interests of Maryland citizens within the limits of the funds available."

Senate President Byrnes (D., Balto.) intends to sponsor the bill legalizing drawings and raffles for non-commercial purposes.

The cost-of-living salary increase would apply to 7246 employes. Barred from the original proposal would be new employes, elected officers, uniformed police officers and the University of Maryland faculty.

However, the interim legislative council has considered a request to raise the pay of State Troopers $20 a month.

The raise would not be applicable either to any employe who has received an equivalent pay boost since September 1946.

WELCOME APRA...

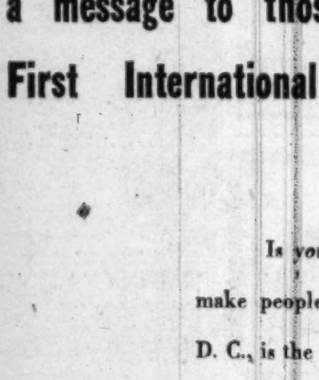
a message to those attending the American Public Relations Association's First International Public Relations Institute at American University

Is your public relations program designed to make people think something? Then Washington, D. C., is the first target. Because Washington is both the source and the sounding board of American opinion. What its officials say is news everywhere. And it contains the world's largest aggregation of opinion spreaders, in its press and radio corps.

When you have won Washington around to thinking your way, you've done a lot towards swinging the whole nation. While if you can't win Washington over, the rest of the country is going to be mighty hard to convince.

How to get your idea over in Washington? The message itself is all-important, of course. But the medium is important, too. And the outstanding medium for public relations advertising is The Washington Post—read and respected by practically everyone of any importance in Washington.

The Washington Post



Today's Technique Is "Open Presentation"

Public Relations through open presentation of the case in paid advertising is superseding traditional lobbying (of the private button-holding type) with modern practitioners for two excellent reasons: (1) Open presentation provokes discussion, and a public airing of the situation is what a public relations practitioner is striving for. (2) Open presentation disarms criticism of improper influence, since the story is there for all to read.

The District Court of the United States for the District of Connecticut, by order entered April 5, 1948, has authorized an initial distribution of one (1) share of new Common Stock (par value $100) of the Company for each One Hundred Dollars ($100) of allowed claim to the holders of unsecured claims allowed in the reorganization proceedings of the Company.

The Plan of Reorganization provides that the total authorized issue of 1,073,852 shares of Common Stock of the Company, less 16 directors' shares, shall be allotted to the holders of allowed unsecured claims against the Debtor. Non-Red Vow Meets No Refusals in GSI

Not a single GSI cafeteria worker has refused to take a loyalty oath, Personnel Director J. C. Niehuss revealed yesterday.

He reported that about 1200 of the estimated 1600 workers employed in Government Services, Inc., lunchrooms and snack bars have already signed the pledge. He anticipated all will have taken the oath by the end of this week.

The oath was ordered several weeks ago by Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming, who emphasized that anyone refusing would be barred from Government buildings in connection with GSI work.

Government Landlord

Fleming is the Government's "landlord" of the 40-odd cafes and the snack bars, tennis courts and other concessions run by GSI.

"We didn't think we had Communists to begin with," Niehuss commented. "We're pretty certain now."

He announced that following completion of the check on cafeteria employers, workers in other GSI concessions will be covered. He said that all office employes and officers of the corporation already have taken the oath.

All of the firm's trustees, he said, are Federal workers nad consequently have already taken the loyalty pledge.

Discharge, Prosecution

The affidavit, Niehuss said, says that the signer has not been, is not and will not become a member of an organization which seeks to overthrow the United States Government by violence. Perjury, he pointed out, would subject a worker not only to firing but to prosecution as well.

The question of communism within the cafeteria workers' union gained prominence during the recent lengthy strike of employes. At that time the management insisted that non-Communist oaths be taken by union officers before negotiating would be conducted. Labor Secretary Schwellenbach told the union leaders, too, that they should sign the affidavits, warning that otherwise he would not try to settle the dispute. Union leaders took the pledge.

Marines Land On Barge At Watergate

By Paul Hume

The Marines landed on the new barge at the Water Gate last night; the situation for the summer is under control.

This is no routine announcement. The barge is new, at a cost of $65,000, and carries the finest sound reproduction we have heard in six summers at the Potomac riverside. The balance of the band was amplified without distortion, and the tone of the various instruments came through with unusual fidelity.

Major Santelmann led his men through a varied program designed to please a wide audience. Listeners filled almost all the seats and spread out on the grass adjoining the steps. Some even found good listening under bushes.

Ample Dressing Rooms

The new barge also boasts ample dressing rooms, lighting facilities, and playing space. The walls and ceiling consist of convex strips of wood about 3 feet across; these seem to act as excellent resonators for the sound.

All of this means that with recent announcements of a four weeks' symphony season, plus plans and rumors of opera, ballet, and other attractions, the summer will be filled with music of all kinds. Given a break from the weather, and support from the people of Washington, the new barge should usher in an exciting season.

Opening the Water Gate meant that we could hear only the last work on the National Gallery chamber music program. There the Tomasow quartet played quartets by Dai-keong Lee and Mary Howe, and Herbert Elwell's Blue Symphony for voice and quartet.

Sings Vocal Line

Marie Simmelink-Kraft, mezzo-soprano of Cleveland, sang the vocal line in the Elwell quartet. The music is highly romantic and superbly written for strings. It seems to us that it would also be effective with string orchestra. Part of this impression comes from the wonderful sonority the quartet gave the work.

The visiting singer, a proven musician as well as singer, gave John Gould Fletcher's poem the benefit of fine enunciation. Her voice has a rare sympathy, and moved with the strings in fluent ease.

UPWA Audit Shows Loss

six months resulted in a $2864 deficit.

Must Increase Income

Ades, in a letter to UPWA officers accompanying his report, said, "The only practical recourse towards overcoming the mounting deficit would be in finding ways and means of increasing the income of the union."

Ades said the figures "would indicate that your union is operating, financially, at a loss at the present time with a probable trend towards a greater deficit in the coming period." He noted that the UPW's operating expenses, nationally, "have been adjusted for the most part to an irreducible minimum" of 73 cents a member per month.

U. P. W. officers did not mention at the convention any need to increase the union's income, nor was the financial problem publicly discussed. In a statement issued after a post-convention executive board meeting last Friday, the union noted only that it has the $123,560 cash surplus.

The U. P. W. income in the year ending last April 30, according to the audit, included $517,655 in dues payments. Related to the 73-cents-a-member-a-month "irreducible" operating minimum alone, the figures indicate that the average paid-up membership in the U. P. W. for the year was less than 60,000.

Abram Flaxer, U. P. W. president, told reporters at the convention, that because check-off of union dues is rarely granted by governments on any level, dues payments lag and a member is permitted to be in arrears on dues payments for three months.

Surplus Only $26,334

Ade's report showed that the union's total income for the year ending April 30 was $532,272; that total expenses were $505,938—leaving an over-all operating surplus for the year of $26,334. This was compared with income of $565,539 for the preceding year, when expenses totaled $533,721 and the over-all surplus was $31,818.

Calculated on the basis of six-month periods, however, the report showed that there was a $37,174 surplus for the period ending April 30, 1947; that the surplus of income over expenses in the six months ending October 31, 1947, was $29,198; but that expenses exceeded income in the six months ending April 30, 1948, leaving a $2864 deficit for that period.

The U.P.W., according to the audit, spent $289,612 for field organizers' salaries and expenses in the year ending last April 30. Per capita tax paid to the national CIO was $30,163.

N. Y. Pianist Is Winner In Contest

Abba Bogin, 23, of New York City, pianist and student at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, yesterday was named winner in finals of the seventh annual audition of the Chamber Music Guild at the Toutorsky Studios, 1720 16th st nw.

Bogin received $100 in cash and will be presented in a concert at Constitution Hall with a symphony orchestar this fall. Three Greater Washington youths were among the other 11 winners selected from a field of 47 contestants.

Second prize of $75, the $50 third and fourth prizes went, respectively, to Ruth Soskind, 23, pianist, New York; Diana Steiner, 15, violinist, Philadelphia, and Irene Rosenberg, 20, pianist, New York. Eight $25 awards went to Mary Jane Kemp, 18, lyric soprano, of 5601 Egemoor lane, Bethesda; Paul C. Wolfe, 22, violinist, of 3504 13th st. se.; Charlotte Bloecher, 25, dramatic soprano, New York; Helen Mauborgn, 19, coloratura, New York; Sylvia Carlisle, 22, soprano, New York; Phyllis Frankel, 21, soprano, Baltimore, and J. Drogheo, 24, baritone, Baltimore. A special encouragement award went to Michael Ponti, 10-year-old pianist of 8506 Dickinson ave., Takoma Park.

The guild, founded and directed by Marcel Ancher, holds the audition for gifted young musicians and singers annually to encourage development of musical talent among persons under 25. More than 200 applicants were received this year.

ments made through April 30, 1948.

"All officers now on active duty under such circumstances must be relieved from active duty prior to May 1, 1948. Legal study is being made of complications, if any, other than pay and allowances and all concerned will be further advised. The policy of ordering reserve component officers to active duty for physical evaluation in new cases has been discontinued . . ."

Army officials said the "forgiving" legislation referred to did not mean any attempt would be made to recover past payments to officer-patients but would be a technical device to exonerate finance officers. These, they said, had acted in good faith to carry out a "wholly humane" and official Army policy which "higher authority" had now held illegal.

Another Letter

A second letter from the adjutant general to hospital commandants, dated April 9, also was passed along to unhappy "evaluationists" in memorandum form. It repeated the dictum that they would all be relieved from active duty "on or before April 30, 1948," but said they might be retained thereafter "as patients in an inactive status as designates of the secretary of the applicable department" under Army regulations "until their physical evaluation has been completed."

This letter added that completion of such evaluation would be urged so that the patients would be eligible "for the benefits of the act of 3 April 1939 or other applicable acts." Oliver said the 1939 act provided that reserve officers, who had been on active duty more than 30 days, would be given "the same benefits as regular Army officers."

One on the Aisle—

Does Our Dona Carry a Badge?

By Richard L. Coe

THE METROPOLITAN'S "Old Los Angeles" is a poor slow-moving pedestrianly played "western" during the course of which your reporter did find two traces of possible trends.

First of these is the fact that the heroine, though posing as a night club singer, is in reality a Federal agent. Second trend hits that villainous Joseph Schildkraut has a Russian background. Without these two slender thoughts to keep him awake, your reporter would have dozed off during a yarn Republic evidently framed for backward 6-year-olds.

However, in FBI-conscious Washington, there is something curiously disarming that a gold rush chanteuse is, in reality, an agent working to get the goods on a guy. Conceivably, the King Cole's Dona Mason has far weightier matters occupying her daylight hours than rehearsals of "Nature Boy" and when Mario and Florida step out on the Shoreham's new outdoor dance floor Thursday night, can it be they will be subtly signally an FBI colleague? That, at least, is what the heroine, arch Catherine McLeod, is up to in "Old Los Angeles."

As for the villain with the French name—Luis Savarin—and the hints of Czarist Russia Schildkraut is playing, he's a thoroughly wicked villain, wanting land, land, land—imperialism in southern California of the 1840's. Time was, the brave Hollywoodians hinted that the Spaniards were the imperialists of San Fernando Valley, but now one finds that the aristocratic Spanish senora Virginia Brissac is playing wants only her democratic rights and that it's the man with the Czarist cigar case that seeks control of the land. Where all this will get us is uncertain, but the present twist in Republic's historical road hints that Gen. Franco's forebears were all for the Union and that Uncle Joe's antecedents were the flies in our democratic ointment.

I'm afraid all this may seem pretty far-fetched to you lucky people who haven't had to sit through "Old Los Angeles," but it's one way of not considering too seriously the stony calm of William Elliott, the nervous camera dis-ease of Miss McCleod or the appalling humor of that eternal bumpkin, Andy Devine.

EVERY ENTRANT A WINNER!

The ultimate in contests is now being achieved by the Warner people, to whom nothing is impossible . . . Every girl with red hair who appears at the Warner Theater between 2 and 6 p. m. Thursday and Friday this week will be admitted to the theater for free and will be asked to sit for a photograph, a copy of which also will be presented gratis . . . The ultimate winner of this super-contest will be the "loveliest red-head" and will receive a watch from Bates Jewelers, and the super-runner-upper will get a $25 United States bond . . . Inspiration for this largesse is Ann Sheridan, who'll be costarring on the screen with Errol Flynn in "Silver River," which, by the strangest chance, opens Thursday on the Warner screen . . . How there can be any further "details" to so fruity a contest is a mystery, but such are available on WWDC's Melody Lane nightly at 6.

"TO LIVE IN PEACE," that splendid Italian film which had so unfortunately brief a downtown run, comes into the Apex Tuesday and Wednesday this week . . . It's one of the better pictures of the season, and if you missed it at the Little, you'll find something to admire at the Apex.

THE ARTS CLUB, always active in its theater division, offers its last play of the season Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights at 8:30 in the clubhouse, 2017 Eye st. . . . Kenneth Horne's "Yes and No" is the play; among the players are Elizabeth Clark, J. Edmund Veitch, Dorothy Winchcole, Katherine Fisher, Mary Johnston, Herman P. Reiss and Larry McGarity.

THE DISTRICT Association of Workers for the Blind is planning another production to benefit its special Vacation Camp Fund . . . The play will be "Arsenic and Old Lace," the comedy which was performed by a group of blind New York players with conspicuous success several seasons ago . . . Directing the group will be Mrs. Ruth Wolkow Snyder, who presented the same players here last year in "Porcupine Island," which netted the Vacation Camp Fund $700 . . . Leonard A. Robinson, chairman of the project, hopes to raise $25,000 for a permanent summer camp for the benefit of local blind persons . . . As you can imagine coordinating a cast of blind actors takes considerable time, so it will be next fall before "Arsenic" is ready.

"OLD LOS ANGELES," Republic release produced and directed by Joe Kane. Screen play by Gerald Adams and Clements Ripley, from a story by Ripley. Photographed by William Bradford. Music by Nathan Scott and Ernest Gold. At the Metropolitan.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

DETROIT, MICH., May 23.—Mr. Walter O. Briggs, who owns the Detroit Tigers, is now batting .500 in the personal ambition league. He set two goals for himself when he bought the Tigers 15 years ago—to have the best team in the American League and the best baseball plant in the world. He has achieved the latter with shining success.

POVICH

Briggs Stadium represents some kind of a peak in ball parks. One day Mr. Briggs decided he did not like the spectacle of groundkeepers dragging hoses all over his lot to wet down the diamond in the pregame ritual of all other parks, so he ordered an underground sprinkling and drainage system installed. On another occasion he saw an invalid making his way to his seat on crutches and ever since there have been wheel chairs at the park entrances for use of the convalescents.

Briggs' payroll for painters who keep the big grandstands a verdant green has exceeded the salary payroll of some of the other clubs of the league. He doesn't want pro football in his park because it damages the grass, but he makes an exception because Detroit seems to want pro football. He spends more on painters than the $80,000 revenue he gets from the football receipts.

THIS YEAR, BRIGGS has bowed to the demand for night baseball. Personally he doesn't like it and for years resisted the whole idea on the theory that night ball conditions did not give his scouts an accurate line on players in the minor leagues, Briggs forbade his minor league clubs to install lights despite the fact that night games were the life blood of the minors.

But Briggs' concern for his customers has prevailed. He installed lights in his park for the greater convenience of workers who complained they could not attend day games. When Briggs did go into the park-lighting business, he did it in the grandest, most expensive way. Briggs' Field is now the best-lighted park in the league.

The Tigers' owner separated himself from $400,000 to get the lights that would be the best. From eight towers, 1456 bulbs, illuminate the park. That is 300 more than Fenway Park's lighting system, 150 more than Yankee Stadium's. Briggs got the figures from those plants and then told his engineers he wanted not only the best lights but the most.

IT'S NICE TO HAVE that kind of money. In the same year that he bankrolled the expensive lighting system, he decided to refurnish the club's front offices. When he was done with adding another story and enlarging the quarters of General Manager Billy Evans, and adding a new cocktail lounge for the press and friends of the management, Briggs picked up another tab of something like $400,000.

Right now there is a waiting list of 2000 persons who would like to buy season box seats for the Tigers' home games. Mr. Briggs has that many seats available, but he won't sell 'em on a season-basis. "The folks who can't afford season box seats but who like to see baseball once or twice a week can get a break in Briggs Stadium," he says. "There are good seats for the occasional customers."

Briggs himself is a wheel-chair fan. Incapacitated following an illness, he is wheeled into the park by an usher, and the problem of the steps in his private box was nicely solved by eliminating them and building the same kind of ramp which the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt used on his visits to Griffith Stadium.

MR. BRIGGS' WEALTH has bought him almost everything except a wealth of baseball talent. His Tigers are laboring a bit in fourth place and are not acknowledged to be much of a pennant threat. They are supposed to have good pitching, but it has not been good this season, and they are struggling with an infield that is not of major league caliber.

The best thing about his ball club at this point is his young outfield. Up through the Tiger farm system have come Vic Wertz and Hoot Evers, two of the better outfielders in the league. Even with Dick Wakefield on the bench, tabbed a failure after being an early sensation, the Tigers have hitting power and speed in their outfield.

But with all his wealth, Briggs has been unable to acquire the second baseman and the shortstop needed to round out his ball club, and his catching hardly measures up, either. He bought baseball brains for his front office by hiring Evans as general manager at a whopping salary, but that underground sprinkling system can't break into the box score.

Nats Watch, Wait, Walk, Win With 2 Out in 9th, 1-0

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Detroit, Mich., May 23.—Walter Masterson grimly fended off the Tigers with a six-hit pitching job today and was rewarded with a 1-0 victory in the ninth when the Nats wrenched a run out of Virgil Trucks.

In dismay, 36,533 Detroit fans watched Trucks walk the game's only run across the plate with two out in the ninth when his control deserted him and he passed three men in a row.

The last of those was Pinch-hitter Early Wynn who drew the decisive walk on four pitches without taking his bat from his shoulder. For Trucks, who allowed the Nats only four hits, it was a painful defeat.

Coan's Speed Factor

It was a triumph for Masterson's assorted delivery over Trucks' fast ball. The Tiger right-hander was pitching three-hit ball for eight innings and blowing his pitches past the Nats. Masterson was mixing 'em up masterfully—spicing his own fast ball with curves that also exploded, plus a smart let-up pitch.

Gil Coan's speed paid big dividends for the Nats in the ninth. He used it to beat out an infield hit ahead of Second Baseman Eddie Mayo's throw. Vernon's sacrifice moved Coan to second and he languished there while Gillenwater grounded out.

Then the Tigers went strategic and ordered Jake Early purposely passed. Then Trucks filled the bases with a walk to Al Kozar unpurposely. Wynn batted for Johnny Sullivan and when Trucks couldn't locate the plate, Coan ambled home from third. Dizzy Trout moved in to fan Masterson for the third out.

Tigers Threaten in Ninth

The Nats didn't shake their three-game losing streak without a struggle, though. In the Tigers' ninth, Masterson had to go all out for his victory after Pat Mullin opened with a single to center and was sacrificed to second.

Masterson bore down then to strike out both Vic Wertz and Paul Campbell, the same guys he fanned two innings before when the Tigers had the potential winning run on base.

Masterson got some superb support from the Nats' infield, too. After Berry opened the game for the Tigers with a single to center, Kozar started a double play on Mayo's grounder. In the second inning, when a walk to Evers and Campbell's single put men on first and third with one out, Johnny Sullivan grabbed Lake's grounder for another double play.

The Nats weren't close to getting a run until the ninth. Early, Sullivan and Gillenwater got useless singles early in the game, but from the fourth to the ninth the Nats didn't get any kind of a hit off Trucks.

IN SHORT.—Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler, on tour in the American League, watched the game as the guest of Tiger Owner Briggs . . . The Tigers are having no luck with the 17 home runs they have hit this season. Fourteen of 'em have been with the bases empty . . . Detroit's hitting is handicapped by the absence of Third Baseman George Kell who has been out of the game 17 days now with a fractured wrist. He was hit by a pitched ball in Philadelphia . . . Early Wynn, who has been having more success of late as a pinch hitter than with his pitching, will face the Tigers tomorrow . . . He draws a rough assignment. Newhouser will pitch for Detroit.

Unknown Belgian Beats Marcel Cerdan

Brussels, May 23 (AP).—Cyrille DeLannoit, unheralded Belgian boxer, dethroned Marcel Cerdan as European middleweight champion tonight by scoring an upset, 15-round decision over the Frenchman. Each weighed 160 pounds.

It was a severe blow for Cerdan who had been sought by promoters in the United States for a September title fight with the winner of the Rocky Graziano-Tony Zale Championship bout at Newark, N. J., June 9.

It was a close fight all the way and many ringsiders thought Cerdan had earned the decision.

When the Referee pointed to DeDannoit as the winner, Cerdan dropped to the canvas and wept in disappointment.

The Ring Collapses

Hundreds in the crowd stormed into the ring to hail the new champion. The floor of the ring collapsed under their weight but no one was hurt.

Few in the partisan Belgian crowd expected DeLannoit to be given the decision. Even members of the Belgian Boxing Federation at the ringside said they were "completely astonished."

It was the first decision Cerdan had lost during his 13-year career. His only two previous losses were on fouls.

During the first five rounds, DeLannoit evaded Cerdan's hooking attack by fighting at long range. DeLannoit slipped to the floor three times while evading Cardan's wild rushes.

After that DeLannoit began forcing the fight at close quarters, figuring that Cerdan had lost some of his explosiveness. Cerdan floored the Belgian with a left hook to the face in the seventh round. DeLannoit was up without a count.

The challenger continued to press in and pound Cerdan's body.

Marcel, apparently realizing that his title was in jeopardy, went all out in the fifteenth round in an attempt to score a knockout, but the Belgian cleverly evaded him.

Yanks, Tribe Split; Di Mag Hits 3 Homers

Cleveland, May 23 (AP).—An explosion of three home runs by Jolting Joe DiMaggio gave the New York Yankees an opening victory over Bob Feller and the Cleveland Indians today, but the league-leaders rallied for a 5-1 victory in the nightcap before an all-time Cleveland Stadium record of 78,431 rain-soaked fans.

The overflow turnout was second to baseball's record crowd of more than 31,000 fans which saw the Yankees and Boston Red Sox in a doubleheader 10 years ago.

Don Black, aided by Russ Christopher, shackled the hard-hitting world champions in the nightcap for his first 1948 victory.

DiMaggio's three circuit clouts accounted for all the Yankee runs in New York's 6-5 victory in the opener.

Ken Keltner's hit his thirteenth home run in the first innings of the opener.

The loss was Feller's third of the season, against five wins, and Allie Reynolds was credited with his sixth victory in seven starts.

A's Whack Browns Twice, 7 to 3 and 8 to 1

St. Louis, May 23 (AP).—Philadelphia's surprising Athletics steam-rollered the St. Louis Browns twice today, 7 to 3 and 8 to 1.

Ferris Fain, Sam Chapman and Buddy Rosar hit home runs in the two contests, Fain's coming in the seventh inning of the nightcap with two on base. Dick Fowler and Lou Brissie were winning pitchers.

It was the third and fourth victories for the A's over St. Louis against no losses this year.

The Browns started the scoring in the first game with five straight singles for two tallies, but the A's came back the next inning to tie the score.

Priladelphia took the lead once, was tied by St. Louis in the fifth, then went out in front again in the seventh.

Jim Demaret, Turnesa and Hogan Also Win in PGA

St. Louis, May 23 (AP).—Claude Harmon, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., was extended to 42 holes today to gain a 1-up victory over Sammy Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., in their scheduled 36-hole match of the PGA golf tournament.

Harmon goes into the semifinal round tomorrow meeting Mike Turnesa, and Jimmy Demaret plays Ben Hogan.

The 42-hole overtime tussle, the second longest in PGA tournament history, turned into a battle of stymies after Snead had staged a great comeback in the afternoon round.

There were three complete or partial stymies on the six extra holes, twice costing Harmon chances to win sooner and once ruining Snead's chance for a victory.

Snead Snarled

On the first extra hole Harmon missed a 25-foot putt and laid Sammy a dead stymie when Snead's ball was only 5 feet from the pin. Snead couldn't curl his putt around it for a birdie.

Sammy squared accounts on the third when his putt blocked Claude's line a few inches from the cup and Harmon missed badly. On the next hole Snead did it again after missing a 10-footer and Harmon, who had a bare chance to make the 6-foot putt, was wide.

On the deciding hole they both were about 25 feet from the pin. After Harmon's putt had hesitated and dropped into the cup, Snead tried to duplicate the feat only to have his ball bang against the far side of the cup and bounce out.

Harmon, who has two of the best club jobs the golf business offers, is playing in only his fourth major tournament this year. He won the Augusta Masters tourney and competed in the Miami four-ball matches and the Goodall round robin tourney.

Snead Rallies

It was a day marked by comebacks and Snead's was the greatest of them all. He never was ahead after the second hole and was six-down at one stage. Harmon, shooting a seven under par medal score of 64 in the morning, went to lunch with a five-hole advantage.

He added another on the third hole of the afternoon round. Sammy got that one right back and on the same hole where the match finally ended, the sixth, he began a great rally.

Snead birdied that and took the next with a par. At the turn Harmon was four up again, but Snead took the tenth—No. 28 in the match—and the thirteenth with a pair of birdie 3s. On the long fourteenth Sammy hit the green in two and got down in two putts from 50 feet while Harmon missed a 12-footer.

A great putt by Snead on the short seventeenth squared the match. Their tee shots both were about 30 feet from the pan and Snead's putt dropped after hanging for an interminable fraction of a second on the lip of the cup. Harmon couldn't make his, nor could he win on the eighteenth.

Dodgers' 8th Loss In Row

Hatton's Homer Helps Reds Dump Bums Into Cellar, 6-5

Brooklyn, May 23 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds dumped the Brooklyn Dodgers, 6-5, with Grady Hatton belting a homer in the eighth inning to win the game. The loss was the Dodger's eighth in a row.

The Dodgers got off to a 5-0 lead in three innings, with homers by Bruce Edwards and Pee Wee Reese highlighting the attack.

Joe Hatten, however, gave up two unearned runs in the fifth and in the next fram the Reds knocked him out with another two-run assault.

Erv Palica stopped that rally but in the seventh the Reds tied the score as Danny Litwhiler doubled and came home with two out on a short single to left by Pinch Hitter Ted Kluszewski.

40,000 Watch Max Schmeling, 42, Lose to Neusel, 39

Hamburg, Germany, May 23 (AP).—In a listless 10-round fight studded with clinches, 39-year-old Walter Neusel today defeated Max Schmeling, 42-year old former world heavyweight champion. Neusel weighed 209, Schmeling 191.

Neither Neusel, onetime European titleholder, nor Schmeling struck any telling blows but Neusel hit Max more frequently.

It was Schmeling's third fight since the end of the war. He won his first by a knockout but went 10 rounds in the second to win by points. It was reported that Schmeling would retire from the ring if he lost today's encounter but Max said nothing when he strolled glumly from the ring.

Branch Rickey Mum on Bums In Talk to Terp Fraternity

Branch Rickey, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, was willing to help launch a college fraternity chapter yesterday at the University of Maryland but he wasn't willing to discuss his "Bums."

"We won't talk about them now," he said.

Rickey's talk before 225 members of Delta Tau Delta, which was opening its seventy-sixth chapter at a banquet at Maryland, concerned the little matter of luck.

He said it was all a matter of "making your own breaks" and that he is not interested in boys "who are satisfied with just getting by. I want men who want to be great."

Rickey became a member of the 89-year-old college fraternity nearly 50 years ago.

Host to the Delts was Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of Maryland. Maryland students were initiated into the new chapter by an initiation team from George Washington University.

when a 75-foot putt stopped only about a foot from the hole.

Harbert also made a great rally to carry Hogan to the thirty-fifth green after being 5 down at the end of the first 18. Smoothing out his short iron game after a bad start, the husky Michigan belter cut into Bantam Ben's lead by winning two of the first three afternoon holes.

At the twenty-eighth, Ben was 4 up again, playing steady machine-like golf. But Harbert got the easy birdie on the thirtieth and finally cut Hogan's lead to two holes on the thirty-fourth. Here he laid a fine iron shot less than a yard from the cup and Hogan, who had a 7-foot putt, blew it.

But Harbert had to win every hole to keep the match alive and he couldn't do it when Hogan laid him a partial stymie on the next green.

Fazio engineered a comeback against Demaret but it wasn't good enough. After trailing 7-down at lunch time and 8-down at the twentieth, the little Pennsylvanian kept the match alive to the thirty-second green. He deuced the twenty-fifth when his ball glanced off Demaret' and into the cup. He made an eagle two, his second of the day, by chipping into the hole from 5 yards off the green on the thirtieth and he whittled Demaret's lead to five with a birdie on the thirty-first.

Turnesa, one of a famous golfing family, never was pressed as Bulla couldn't make his putts drop. He took the lead on the second hole and kept increasing it until he ran out the match by winning the thirtieth and thirty-first with a pair of birdie threes.

Turnesa Favored In British Amateur

Sandwich, England, May 23 (U.P.)—Despite his one-stroke defeat in the Grand Challenge Cup tournament, walloping Willie Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., was ruled a slight favorite today to retain his British amateur golf championship in play starting tomorrow.

Turnesa was one of nine Americans among the field of 168 players from 10 nations.

One match Wednesday pits Turnesa against Frank Tatum, an American now attending Oxford University. In another second-round match Wednesday, Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, will meet Dr. J. B. Wilson of Britain.

Jansen Gets 5th Victory On 4-Hitter

New York, May 23 (AP).—Johnny Mize clouted a two-run homer in the sixth inning today to enable the New York Giants to defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 2-1.

Larry Jansen, sophomore New York hurler, pitched a four-hitter to hang up his fifth victory of the year against two defeats.

Mize's homer was his sixth of the season and the blow enabled the Giants to overcome a 1-0 lead. Ralph Kiner belted his tenth homer in the fifth inning to give the Pirates a short-lived advantage.

Hal Gregg opened for the Pirates but he left in the third inning after being struck on the right arm by a line drive off the bat of Buddy Kerr. Elmer Singleton took over and was charged with the loss.

Gregg apparently suffered no worse than a swollen elbow. There was no indication of a fracture, although X-rays will be taken tomorrow.

Braves Gain Tie for Third By Beating Chicago Twice

Boston, May 23 (AP).—Boston's Braves moved into a tie for third place in the National League today by twice drubbing the Chicago Cubs, 8-5 and 12-4, before 31,693 paid fans.

Highs Playoff Starts Today

The Interhigh League baseball championship playoffs, a double elimination among the four top teams, begin at 1 p. m. today with a double-header at Griffith Stadium.

Eastern's Ramblers, who have won 14 championships during the past 23 years, are favored to win over Anacostia's Indians in the first game. In the second game, Coolidge's Colts, titleholders for two straight years, but shorn of most of last year's stars, meet McKinley Tech's Trainers.

The second round of the playoffs are slated for Friday with today's winners meeting in one game, and the losers in the other.

Eastern, which went through its seven-game league slate unbeaten, is expected to lead with its ace right hander Eddie Kline, against Anacostia's Leo Kerschbaum, who pitched for Eastern last season. The Ramblers nosed out Anacostia, 4-3, earlier this season.

Anacostia is the tourney's sentimental favorite. In the 11 years of its Interhigh participation, Anacostia has never won a championship in any sport. This is the first time in six years the Indians made the baseball playoffs, and they made it by winning their last four games in succession.

Coolidge will send Right Hander Ed Hughes to the hill to appose Tech's Bob Quinn, also a right hander. Tech walloped the Colts, 17-5, earlier in the campaign but the two wound up tied for second place with 5-2 records.

The paramount need for a speedy job of educational rehabilitation and expansion is discussed in this editorial, which also appears in McGraw-Hill publications. It may be quoted from, or reprinted with or without credit mention.

This is the 68th of the series.

5,000,000 Youngsters Need Our Help Now

The bumper wartime crop of babies, about 5,000,000 larger than the population experts expected, is reaching school age.

At school these youngsters should find a good education awaiting them. That is their most cherished American birthright.

But unless something is done quickly, millions of these children will be cheated. They will crowd into classrooms already run on double shifts. They will move in with children who are now sitting two in a single seat. They will read germ-loaded books mangled by a generation of use by grimy hands.

I

So the continuing crisis in American education is given a new twist by unexpected pressure on school plant and equipment.

The U. S. birthrate has jumped by leaps and bounds. Instead of declining in the '40s, as the experts expected it would, the rate climbed from 17.9 per thousand in 1940 to 21.5 in 1943. It jumped to 25.9 in 1947, an increase of 45 percent since 1940. Result—by 1956 elementary school attendance in the United States is expected to jump from 18,200,000 to more than 23,400,000, an increase of about 5,200,000, or more than one-fourth.

The rush has already begun. It will pick up speed next fall.

Now, while this pressure has been building up, our public schools and their equipment have been running down—first through inevitable wartime neglect, then because inflation and material and labor shortages made it difficult to catch up.

If we are to give this bumper crop of youngsters the break they deserve—and reach the educational standards the nation needs—we must speedily do a major job of educational rehabilitation and expansion.

II

Some headway has been made in overcoming the teachers' salary crisis.

Teachers' salaries are improving. Pay problems were driving good teachers away from their posts in droves not long ago. But in the year since the 57th editorial in this series emphasized that crisis, the average teacher's annual salary has increased about $300—from $2250 to $2550.

True, increases vary enormously from state to state and from town to town. In a few states the average increase has been $500; in some less than $100. But, for the nation as a whole, last year's increase put teachers about even in the race with the cost of living. After taxes, their salaries have risen 68%, and the cost of living 67%, since 1939. In terms of pay increases, however, they are not nearly as well off as are industrial workers, whose average weekly wages after taxes have risen 108% since 1939. They are far behind farmers, whose net income is now four times what it was in 1939. And teachers had notoriously low salaries to start with.

A great deal more needs to be done in raising salary standards to put our school system on a firm footing. There are still about 100,000 teachers, nearly 12% of all public school teachers, who hold temporary or emergency credentials. They cannot meet prevailing standards, and not very severe standards at that, for persons holding their posts.

The salary crisis, however, is easing.

III

But now comes the new crisis in school buildings and equipment.

We would have been hard put to get our schools back into shape after years of wartime neglect—even without a booming birthrate complicating the problem. Right now, 85% of all public school buildings need major remodeling to remove health and safety hazards.

And we aren't building enough new schools to keep up with current needs, to say nothing of catching up on those we were not able to build during the war years. School construction expenditures for 1948 are estimated at $375 million—which is less than what was spent in 1939. With building costs twice as high as they were in 1939, that means we aren't even holding our own—we are falling further behind.

And now comes the rush of war babies.

IV

We must spend at least $11 billion on new schools and equipment in the next decade.

Public and elementary schools must have $6.6 billion. Equally important, another $4.4 billion must be invested in buildings and equipment in our private schools, colleges and universities if they are to meet the demands which will be made upon them. The private school and the privately endowed university are doing their full share and doing it well. The need for them is increasing.

These figures cover only rockbottom needs for educational plant and equipment. But statistics are a very restricted recorder of this crisis.

You can see it better, I'm sure, in schools not very far from your home. There are schools with leaking roofs and outdoor toilets in our greatest cities. There are schools where students still use histories and geographies copyrighted before 1920—books with no mention of World War I, the depression of the 1930's, the Russian Revolution or the rise of the dictators. There are countless schools where modern methods of visual education are completely unknown.

All of these conditions promise to get worse—promptly—as that scheduled 5 million increase in the school population gets rolling.

V

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company does not indulge in lurid prose. It says after painstaking study of the educational crisis that:

"Unless definite measures are taken immediately . . . large numbers of American boys and girls will be deprived of an adequate education."

Currently we are deeply concerned about our military defenses. We are taking, and I think rightly, emergency measures to strengthen them. But we must regard our schools as a part of our national defense as vital as are our armed forces. This is particularly true in these times of fifth columns and ideological warfare.

If we are wise, we will raise our sights. We will give the continuing crisis in education the same urgent attention being given the more obvious but no more real crisis in national defense.

Go to the school house in your neighborhood and discover what needs to be done to provide for the rising tide of young Americans. Ask your school board and your school administrators and teachers how you can help them.

That is good citizenship.

That is patriotism.

That is our duty to the oncoming generation.

Loyalty Officials See Little Program Change Provided in Mundt Bill

The House-approved Mundt-Nixon bill would supply the FBI and Civil Service with "excellent tips" on any Communists and fellow-travelers in Government. It also would penalize any Federal official who hires an employe whom he knows or believes to be a member of a Communist political group.

Otherwise, the bill would make no significant change in the President's loyalty program. This is the view of top loyalty officials.

The "tips," or leads, could be had under a provision and its membership. But as a loyalty official explained:

"We know that Communist Party records carry assumed names for their members. We would have to prove, or disprove, that an alias either fits or does not fit a particular employe. It boils down to a question of identity—the same troublesome problem we now have."

Meantime, it was learned, the Civil Service loyalty review board will make a spot check on the cases of Federal workers that have been cleared by the FBI. It will take a sample of 10,000 cleared cases and check them against information on employes being compiled in the Civil Service master index file.

The master index is only partly completed. Another two years will be required to bring it up to date. Eventually it will contain questionable information on every Federal worker and applicant for a Government job.

PEOPLE: The State Department is trying to hire Mefford Runyan, a former Columbia Broadcasting executive, for a top job in its Voice of America radio programs . . . Geoffrey May, a former Budget Bureau official, will return soon from Greece. He has a top post with the American mission in that country . . . Paul S. Cooper is the security officer of the National Security Resources Board. Daniel C. Fahey is chief of NSRB's plans division . . . . Thomas O'Keefe is drafting a Latin-American export policy for the Commerce Department.

NOTES: The National Labor Relations Board plans to hire several thousand college students this summer on a part-time per diem basis to conduct union elections. The hiring will be outside this city. . . . The President has given the Civil Service Commission the authority to determine the reemployment rights of Federal workers who serve in the Merchant Marine. . . . The House has approved the Senate bill that would put Agriculture's 3000 meat inspetors back on the Federal payroll. The inspectors are now paid from fees exacted from the meat packers.

INTERIOR: Its appropriation bill will be reported to the House this week. Dollar-wise, it's expected to be substantially larger than this year's budget, but nevertheless, insiders say, the department would be forced to lay off some Reclamation employes under it.

ECA: The President has ordered the transfer to the Economic Cooperation Administration of the State Department's foreign relief duties such as the Greek, Turkish, and other foreign aid programs.

The order makes it clear that such State employes as ECA "may designate" shall be transferred. State has several hundred employes here and abroad in this work. How many ECA will take over is an undetermined question, but an ECA official made it plain that "we will pick and choose."

ECA has adopted a policy that will prevent any top recovery job being given to an alien. Some few aliens will be hired for minor jobs to service the foreign missions. The top overseas men will be hired by ECA officials. People to fill most of these jobs will be processed through State's foreign service and they will be given some sort of foreign service status.

JOBS: The Office of National Defense needs Grade 3 and 4 stenographers and Grade 3 typists. The top salaries in these grades will be paid to applicants who have been paid them previously. Status isn't necessary. Apply in Room 3-C 667 in the Pentagon, or call RE. 6700, Branch 74211 for further details.

NOTES: The Munitions Board, also in the Pentagon, is gradually building up its staff . . . Senator Langer (R., N. Dak.) has in bills to exempt the first $1440 of Federal pensions from Federal income taxes, and to merge the retirement system of the Comptroller of the Treasury with the Civil Service system . . . Pay raises for superior accomplishments have been given to these Agricultural employes: Julia K. Jacobsen, Ray M. House, John K. Cross, Daniel E. Gibson, Beverly M. Thomas, Frank W. Schultz, and Alva C. Blakely.

JOBS: The Army is recruiting school principals, teachers, librarians, and nurses for overseas assignments. About 300 are needed for Japan, Germany, Okinawa, and Austria. Pay rates are from $2992 to $5187. Living expenses range from $45 to $75 a month, depending on the area. A three-man recruiting team is here through Wednesday to interview applicants in Room 5-C-942 of the Pentagon.

PAY REPORT: Senator Taft (R., Ohio) has received a letter signed by 148 attendants at the Danville, Ill., Veterans' Hospital thanking him for his interest in Federal worker pay raises. This should be the crucial week on pay legislation.

Two Bandits Rob Patrons Of Nightclub At Gunpoint

Customers Relieved Of Cash, Jewelry By Men Who Had Membership Cards

A pair of armed bandits lined up and robbed patrons in an after-hours night club early yesterday after reportedly entering the club in search of a well-heeled numbers operator.

They got $121 in cash and jewelry valued at about $175, but were just 15 minutes too late to get the numbers man, reputedly a big time operator. The gambler, who had been out of town a few days because of the gambling probe, had come into the club with a "large bankroll," it was said.

At about 4:30 a. m. there was a knock on the door of the 1352 Club, at 1352 Wallach pl. nw. Robert Douglas, the club manager of 3771 Jay st. ne., went to the door.

There stood two men. Douglas recognized them as a pair who had been in the club earlier in the evening and had displayed membership cards.

Asks For Cards

"Your membership cards, please," requested Douglas.

Instead, the men produced weapons. One man pointed an automatic pistol at the club manager. His companion waved a revolver.

They forced Douglas inside the club. They ordered the patrons inside to cease dancing and line up in front of the bar. After taking $18 from the cash register and $28 from Douglas, the bandits robbed four of the men patrons.

From George Mahoney of 1317 V st. nw., they took $68, a wrist watch and a diamond ring valued at $150, from Isaac Jamison of 1747 S st. nw., $5, from Phineas Yoshida of 1756 T st. nw., at $5 wrist watch, and from Norman Bailey of 1418 Hopkins st. nw, $2 and a fraternity key worth $20.

Caution Against Police Call

Before leaving the club, the pair cautioned their victims against following them or calling police. One of the men returned in a few seconds, repeated the warning and as an afterthought grabbed a fifth of Scotch whiskey from the bar before he departed.

Police learned that the pair flagged a cab outside the club and drove north on 14th st.

Both men were described as Negroes, about 25 years old and of medium height and weight. One wore a brown suit and a green snap brim hat. The other man was wearing a dark brown coat, light tan trousers and a brown felt hat.

Among other robbery victims reporting to police yesterday was Maurice C. Frye, 39, a cab driver, of 4913 Washington pl. ne. Frye said he was robbed by two men of $6 and a pocket watch worth $15 at about 12:15 a. m. at 30th and Channing sts. ne.

Thomas Coes, 31, of 1861 3d st. sw., was approached by three men shortly before midnight at 4th and C sts. sw. He said they struck him over the head with a hard object and robbed him of $26. Coes was treated at Emergency Hospital for scalp lacerations.

Ellen Harriet Spangler of Roanoke, Va., was robbed of $245 and a wedding ring set with small diamonds in Union Station Saturday night. Police said the thief apparently lifted Miss Spangler's wallet while she dozed in the station waiting room.

Luther McGhee, 38, of 1608 New Jersey ave. nw., was robbed of his wrist watch by two men at 1:15 a. m. at 11th and P sts. nw. Two vice squad officers, P. L. Gaines and H. S. Taylor, happened to be in the vicinity. They picked up two suspects. The men, William T. Brown, 38, of 1207 6th st. nw. and William H. Wiggins, 35, of 12 G st. nw., were charged with robbery.

Pants burglars made two good hauls early yesterday. Someone entered the apartment of Joseph H. Burnham, at 2809 Terrace rd. se., while he was sleeping and took his billfold from his pants pocket. It contained $89.

A thief also entered the basement apartment of Jess Callison, at 200 E st. nw., and took $115 from a billfold in Callison's pants pocket and $20 in quarters and a $15 pocket watch from the dresser.

Shoeless Driver Flees After Gyrating Auto Upsets Twice

Police yesterday sought a man who put a borrowed car through some queer antics in the 2500 block of Benning rd. ne.

In their lookout, police said the man might be in his bare feet or stocking feet.

Police said the man is John Bland of 931 4th st. nw. Yesterday, at about 6 a. m., Bland was driving the borrowed auto west on Benning rd. Just west of Oklahoma ave., the car jumped the curb bordering the streetcar right of way.

The car went wildly down the streetcar right of way for about 300 feet, turned over, righted itself, then jumped the curb into the eastbound highway lane, continued another 150 feet, then turned over once more, finally coming to rest on its left side.

Picked Up by Hacker

Adam Taylor, a cab driver, of 3 S st. nw., stopped and picked up Bland and Paul Crutchfield, 32, of 1332 V st. nw., a passenger in Bland's car. Taylor took off for Gallinger Hospital.

When he stopped his cab at a stop light, Bland jumped from the cab and fled. Crutchfield was treated at Gallinger for head lacerations.

In the wrecked car, which was demolished, police found Bland's shoes, still neatly laced.

According to police, the car's owner is Richard Stone of 109 K st. nw.

In other traffic accidents, three District residents remained in serious condition at Emergency Hospital, Annapolis, after a Saturday night truck-auto crash on Central Highway 5 miles south of Annapolis.

In the hospital were Dean Monahan, 16, of 3821 22d st. ne., with a possible fracture of the spine; Zeh B. Williams, 51, of 2722 Connecticut ave. nw., with a fractured right wrist and head lacerations, and Mary Elizabeth Norton, 41, of 2526 17th st. nw., with a fractured left leg and multiple lacerations.

According to Anne Arundel County police, a car driven by Williams first sideswiped a car driven by William I. Lyons, a 19-year-old Marine stationed at Bainbridge, Md.

Then, police said, Williams' car rammed head first into a truck driven by Francis E. Hanley of 3118 Lancer pl., Queens Chapel Manor, Md.

The truck was carrying a group of Washington youngsters on a hayride.

Police said all three drivers had been charged with reckless driving and that a hearing would be held June 18 at the Galesville, Md., police substation.

Pvt. Alvin C. Hammock, 37, of 221 20th st. ne., a police motorcycle officer, suffered a possible spine fracture and multiple bruises about 10 o'clock last night while chasing a speeder along Alabama ave. se. The speeder, police said, turned into 15th st. se., and Hammock, in attempting to make the turn, crashed into the rear fender of a car being driven by Philip B. Jordan, 44, of 1405 Carrollburg pl. sw.

500 Fathers, Sons Attend Jubilee Fete

Hebrew Brotherhood Host to All Faiths at 25th Annual Banquet

For the twenty-fifth time, the Washington Hebrew Congregation Brotherhood played host last night to fathers and sons of all faiths—this time outdoing the other 24 times.

Marking the silver jubilee of these annual father-son banquets, some 500 youngsters and dads whooped their way through a cold chicken dinner and entertainment program at the Shoreham Hotel.

Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Baseball Club, was guest of honor and received a plaque for his contribution to Washington youth. He led a delegation of sports figures that included baseball's famed clown, Al Schacht, and Washington Redskins Owner George P. Marshall.

Twelve-year-old Bernard Young of the Westchester Apartments walked off not only with a stomach full of chicken, soda pop, milk, potato chips, cake and fruit, but also a movie projector, first prize in the annual essay contest. The subject: "If I Were a Dad."

First prize in other age groups went to Johnny Mandel, 8, of 2912 Nash pl. se., an autographed baseball, and Stuart Schwartz, 17, 5118 Kansas ave. nw., a baseball glove.

H. Backenheimer, a father, of 3760 W st. nw., won a radio for the best essay on "If I Were a Son."

Provoking screams of laughter—muffled in mouthfuls of chicken—were Washington's own clown, Bumpsy, and an organ grinder, complete with monkey.

Each boy received a sackful of toys and had the joy of posing in a mass picture with Clark Griffith. The venerable ball club owner said he'd frame it for his office.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Milton Korman was in charge of arrangements, with Attorney Jack E. Bindeman, program director.

ATC Soldier Drowns in Roaches Run

Airport Barracks Youth a Victim Of Cramps Attack At Wildlife Refuge

A 19-year-old soldier was drowned at about 3:30 p. m. yesterday in the wildlife sanctuary lagoon on the west side of Mt. Vernon Memorial Highway, about a mile below the Highway Bridge.

The lagoon is also known as Roaches Run. The Army identified the victim as Corpl Norris L. Larson, from Omaha, Nebr.

Police said Larson and a companion, Pvt. Joseph Parmentola, 21, both stationed at the Air Transport Command barracks at National Airport, had gone to the pool for a swim.

Parmentola said they swam across the lagoon—a distance of about 300 yards—and then started back. On the second lap, Parmentola said, his companion complained of cramps.

Parmentola shouted to persons on the bank for assistance. A former lifeguard, Marine Sergt. Charles R. Lepper, 19, of Camp Lejeune, N. C., plunged into the water and swam to the stricken swimmer's side.

He said he tried to pull the soldier to shore with a chin carry, but the soldier became panicky and fought him. Lepper lost his hold on the soldier and the latter went under the water.

Another Marine, Pvt. Carl E. Lee, 19, of Camp Lejeune, also went into the water in an unsuccessful attempt to rescue the soldier.

A Harbor Precinct police boat grappled for the victim's body and finally recovered it at about 7:30 p. m.

Park Police Pvt. C. A. Mason said more than 100 persons, most of them out strolling and sunning in the balmy Sunday afternoon weather, watched the grappling operations.

Salesmen Groups Meet to Oppose Gearhart Bill

Some 75 representatives of the National Council of Salesmen's Organizations and 18 of its affiliated groups conferred here last night to plan opposition to the Gerhart bill which they contend would jeopardize their rights to benefits under the Social Security Act.

The bill, sponsored by Representative Bertrand W. Gearhart (R., Calif.), has passed the House, and is on the Senate calendar. The conference declared the bill would "nullify recent Supreme Court decisions by narrowing the definition of 'employes' to exclude wholesale salesmen under the Social Security Act."

The conference, held at the Statler Hotel, heard Representatives Herman P. Eberharter (D., Pa.) and William G. Stratton (R., Ill.) and received telegrams from Senators Robert Wagner (D., N. Y.), Irving Ives (R., N. Y.), Warren G. Magnuson (D., Wash.) and James E. Murray (D., Mont.) in opposition to the measure.

CCNY Alumni to Meet

Washington alumni of the City College of New York will hold their final meeting this season on Wednesday at 8:30 p. m. in the Gold Room of the Hamilton Hotel, 14th and K sts. nw.

House To Begin Home Rule Bill Debating Today

Backers Predict Its Passage After About Two Days; 300 Seats Open

Barring a shift in plans, debate on District home rule legislation will begin on the floor of the House of Representatives about 2 p. m. today.

Floor leaders said the bill probably will follow completion of action on a Postoffice matter under discussion when the House adjourned Thursday. The House meets at noon today.

More than 300 seats in the gallery will be open to the public during the discussion.

Sections reserved for Congressmen and their families and for groups being guided through the Capitol will not be available.

Any demonstration of approval or disapproval is not permitted, gallery officials reminded yesterday.

Five Delegations to Attend

Five District organizations interested in the measure are planning to send delegations to listen to the House debate. They are the Central Suffrage Conference, the Federation of Citizens Associations, the Washington Home Rule Committee, the League of Women Voters and the Federation of Women's Clubs.

The head of the CSC, Wilbur Finch, who has been working toward enactment of such legislation for several years, declared last night that chances for passage of the Auchincloss measure are excellent. He said, "The inevitable is about to happen."

The leader of the fight to give Washington residents a voice in their local government, Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.), has declared that debate will probably continue for at least two days. He predicted that "dilatory tactics" will not be used by either side in the discussion.

The home rule measure has brought the drive for suffrage here to its furthermost point since it became an issue in Congress. Both political parties have previously supported District home rule in platforms, but action toward extending it has always fallen short of enactment.

Provisions of Bill

Auchincloss, a former municipal official in New Jersey and New York, headed the House District Subcommittee which drew up the 180-page bill. In its present form, the bill would:

1. Abolish the present Board of three appointed District Commissioners and replace them with an elected city council.
2. Authorize the council to appoint a city manageer.
3. Streamline most city agencies into 12 major departments under the manager's office.
4. Place the public schools of Washington under a separate department headed by an elected Board of Education.
5. Authorize the council to enact ordinances and prepare the annual city budget, subject to the advice of a proposed joint congressional District Committee.

Congress Still Holds Reins

6. Permit the council to propose changes in general District legislation, but final action would be up to Congress and the President. In addition Congress could continue legislating on District matters as it now does.
7. Authorize the election of a District Delegate to the House of Representatives. He would have the right to debate and make motions, but not to vote.

If the home rule bill clears both Congress and the President, it will go into effect only if approved by a majority of qualified District voters.

Floor managers for the bill will be Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.), chairman of the House District Committee and Representative Auchincloss. Representative John L. McMillan (D., S. C.), ranking minority member of the District Committee, is expected to lead the opposition.

Correction

The Washington Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing will observe women's night at 8 p. m. today in the Francis Asbury Methodist Church, 16th and Lamont sts. nw. The address of the church was incorrectly listed as 11th and K sts. nw, in The Washington Post yesterday. The Washington Post regrets the error.

Six Priests Celebrate First Masses

The first priests ordained by the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle as Archbishop of Washington for his diocese yesterday celebrated their first solemn masses.

They were members of a class of six priests from St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore, who were ordained by Archbishop O'Boyle at ceremonies at St. Matthew's Cathedral Saturday. Four of the priests will serve the Washington archdiocese and two will serve the Richmond diocese.

GW Students At Cathedral Ceremonies

Live like Jesus, conscious of both God and man, graduating George Washington University students were told at baccalaureate services last night in Washington Cathedral.

Dr. Joseph Richard Sizoo, president of the New Brunswick Theological Seminary and former pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, told the graduates that "when compassion becomes coupled with reverence, then your lives will have meaning for your community.

"Jesus of Nazareth lived his life with two dimensions," he said. "There was something within him that was always reaching up, and something within him that was always reaching out. Jesus lived with a consciousness of God and man and kept them in balance."

The academic procession entered the great choir of the Cathedral led by the Cathedral crucifer, the hoods of the faculty, with their colors denoting degrees, bright against the academic black of the robes.

Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president of the University; Canon Crawford W. Brown, and Dr. Sizoo followed, while more than 1000 relatives and friends stood in silent interest.

Dr. Marvin, as has been his custom for many years, read the scripture lesson, from Ephesians, Chapter 6, verses 10-20, beginning "Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord and in the power of His might."

The choir was composed of the university glee clubs under the direction of Dr. Robert Howe Harmon.

Commencement exercises will be held at 8 p. m. Wednesday in Constitution Hall. Degrees will be awarded to about 1500 students, the largest graduating class in the history of the 127-year-old University.

$147,000 Raised By Food Division Of United Appeal

A total of $147,000 in contributions last night was raised by more than 550 persons attending the United Jewish Appeal's Food Division banquet held at the Mayflower Hotel.

Reuven Dafni, mayor of a Palestine settlement and an officer in the Army of Israel, the Haganah, as guest speaker, assailed the British for duplicity and praised President Truman for his recognition of the new State of Israel.

Last night's contributions represent an increase of almost $57,000 more than the Food Division here contributed to the drive in 1947. The local campaign quota is for $2,500,000 of the national goal for $250,000,000.

Vacant Lot Becomes Playground

The Washington Post

Residents of Tunlaw Gardens, 3800 block of Davis pl. nw., oversee children on own playground.

W. C. (Jack) Harper, 3822 Davis pl. nw., has no children of his own—but he obviously likes them.

When the management of the Tunlaw Gardens apartment development, in the 3800 block of Davis pl. nw., said children were not to play in the grassy courtyards, parents were in a quandary.

Harper

Harper came up with the answer—a vacant plot across the street. And through his efforts, a playground came into being.

Harper modestly disclaims any credit. Instead, he will talk about how kind it was of Maurice Schlein, owner of the vacant property, and Maurice Kohner, agent for its sale, to let the children use the space. Harper, assistant cashier at the Capital Transit Co., also emphasizes the the parents all worked to clear the grounds and buy equoipment fater the lot was obtained.

Afternoons now there are likely to be 35 to 40 youngsters playing under the eyes of their mothers, where not long ago it was uncleared, brushy land.

During the war, Harper and some of his neighbors used to go across the street to pitch horseshoes on the grounds. It wasn't long before some of the children began to follow them and get in the way of the flying shoes. As a safety measure they cleared a spot for the children. The next year, 1944, Harper got some sand and the children had sandboxes.

Then, after the war, came the keep-off-the-grass ukase, and the playground idea sprouted.

"It has been a lifesaver," Mrs. W. H. Stubbs, 3822 Davis pl., said yesterday. "Before this, the children had no place to play but the street."

Another mother, Mrs. Max C. Hinsdale, 3810 Davis pl., said, pushing her 14-month-old son, Jerry, on a swing, "The Stoddard school playground on the corner is all right for the big boys to play ball there, but there's no shade and the little children are liable to get hurt."

At present the mothers are collecting money among themselves for a slide. They figure they have spent about $50 for equipment so far. They are also thinking about forming a cooperative outdoor nursery, with two or three mothers always present.

"It will give the others a chance to go to the grocery."

County Announces Traffic Crackdown

Failure to stop for fire engines will be among traffic violations to be given special attention by Prince Georges County police in a traffic drive starting Wednesday.

Lives of volunteer firemen and of other motorists are endangered when cars fail to pull to the right of the road and stop when fire engines approach, Police Maj. Ralph W. Brown explained.

Major Brown, superintendent of Prince Georges County Police, said he plans to confer with municipal police force officials and Maryland State Police in furtherance of the crackdown on traffic violators.

"No tickets will be fixed," Chief Brown declared. "Even the minor phases of the traffic law, including illegal parking, will be enforced."

But special emphasis he said will be given to arrest of speeders, reckless drivers and those who fail to give right of way. These were the main traffic death causes in the county the past year.

Now It Can Be Told

Two Men's Influence Helped Gen. Eisenhower Decide on Presidency

By Marie McNair

NOW it can be told. That the decision of General Eisenhower not to be a candidate for President can be laid to the influence of two men . . . One was his brother, the other, Deputy Chief of Staff, Gen. Lawton Collins.

MRS. McNAIR

It was upon their advice against entering politics that the former Chief of Staff wrote his now famous letter stating why he would not accept the honor if it were offered him.

Mrs. Eisenhower, too, may have had a hand in it. Because long before the Eisenhower for President boom reached serious proportions she said to a friend "you wouldn't wish that on him."

But the possibility that the general might return to a Washington job is enhanced with the present dissension in the ranks of the Army's top brass. Asked just a day or two ago if there was a chance that he would return to Washington in any kind of capacity, the general turned to his five-star flag on the wall of the president's room at Columbia University. It is always possible that I can be recalled to Washington by that."

CONGRESS collectively is usually thought of as a sober, serious minded body of men given to wearing long hair and making long-winded speeches.

Individually there's a flash of humor among 'em, as was shown at the dinner Saturday night in honor of the Senator Majority Leader Wallace H. White and Mrs. White, given by the other Maine Senator, Owen Brewster and Mrs. Brewster, at the Sulgrave Club.

Called upon to speak on behalf of the senior Senator from Maine who is retiring from public life, Senator Vandenberg addressed his opening remarks to his host.

There was only one thing he didn't like about Senator Brewster, the Senator from Michigan said. That was "his foreign accent."

"I listened to him speak for two hours once on the subject of "shot lobsters" and it wasn't until he had finished that I realized he was saying short lobsters."

SENORA de Gonzalez-Arevalo wife of the Guatemalan Ambassador, speaks beautiful French and Spanish and her native Italian. Her English is good, too, and she's struggling to improve.

Apparently she's been influenced by the Ilka Chase School of grammar. The other day, telling of her life before the war, she said," I went to Paris to stay six weeks, instead I stood there nine years."

The mother of three young children, la senora named her middle one for a song. The bambino was born in London during the blitz, but before she came her mother would sit night after night listening to the radio. "Maria Elena" was then the most popular tune, and she said to herself," If I have a little girl, I will call her that."

TOWN TOPICS: Mary Benton Gore and Lyle O'Rourke are the town's daily double . . . Mrs. William D. Connor, pocket size wife of the general, says she's afraid of only three things in the world—the income tax collector, columnists and her cook!

Senator Theodore Francis Green who'll be 81 in October, walks every day from the University Club on Sixteenth st., where he lives, to his office at the Capitol, and sometimes back again. Moreover, he's a fancy swimmer and diver.

DATE-BOOK DATA:

Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America and Mrs. Johnston, will give a star-studded dinner on Wednesday, June 2 at the F Street Club. Mary Haworth's Mail

An Only Child, Man's Family Encouraged Him In Spontaneous Behavior, Which They Thought Might Foster Genius; His Wife Is Disappointed

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband, an only child, was never disciplined. He grew up in an atmosphere reminiscent of the family in the play, "You Can't Take It With You."

His mother managed the household, his father was easy-going, and several adoring relatives lived with them. Their only thought was to encourage Paul (my husband) to be brilliant, and each was happily absorbed in some personal hobby, regardless of expense and without concern for making a living. As a result, they were always getting financial help from others.

My family, on the other hand, took life seriously. They would work day and night, if necessary, to make ends meet, for they considered it a disgrace to depend on others for support.

Now I am having difficulty with Paul about the discipline of our children. In his enthusiasm for his work and hobbies, he leaves the whole responsibility of managing them to me, yet he interferes with my attempts to teach them obedience to rules.

They Clash About Children's Duty

EACH CHILD has an attractive room, our back yard is an interesting playground for them and their friends are always welcome here. But I do insist on rules in running the home and when the children deliberately break these rules, I punish them. Whereupon Paul denounces me.

I realize that a model mother shouldn't lose her temper or raise her voice when correcting a child, but I do at times, and then Paul angrily reprimands me in their presence, makes it known that he sympathizes with them, tells them I am curbing their initiative, etc., but says nothing to the child who has disobeyed.

Consequently I accomplish little by correcting them and the youngest is growing so resentful and irresponsible that it hurts me. Can you offer any suggestions? Paul refuses to get help from a psychologist and I would appreciate your advice. E. G.

Wife Is Picking Fights With Man

DEAR E. G.: As you say, hostility should play no part in the discipline of children; but time and again you are guilty of it, in Paul's presence, whereupon he champions the children and reprimands you angrily.

It is significant that you do have a history of blazing up when Paul can see and hear, a significance heightened by the fact that you feel he leaves the whole responsibility of child training to you.

In my opinion, these emotional seizures are for his benefit mostly, a way of letting off steam about your seething dissatisfaction with his blithe performance as compared to your conscientious worrying in the role of parent.

I believe that at such times you are striking at him, using the children's wilfulness as a talking point, as much as to say, "Chips off the old block," and Paul gets the drift, resentfully takes up the challenge and fights back, thus sabotaging your attempts to compel filial respect for maternal decree.

Man's Defensive Against Nagging

IN BRIEF, when Paul allies himself with the children's cause, he is hotly defending himself against your raging insinuations that he is the despoiler of your happiness; which means that you aren't fussing about the children so much as you are at each other's throats in irate display of fundamental incompatibility.

You introduce Paul as the product of a rearing quite different from yours, and phrase the difference to suggest that your indoctrination was much the best, investing you with moral qualities far superior to his. Also you imply that he is a pretty irresponsible family head.

As to that, if you have a home which provides an attractive room for each child and an interesting playground in the back yard, Paul must be making a rather substantial material contribution to the family welfare, which indicates that he isn't devoid of all sense of duty or devotion to others, despite his inbred creed that life should be an individually enjoyable experience, keyed to enthusiastic absorption in work and play.

My suggestion for easing friction is to get help for yourself from a psychologist. When your performance is par on the score of maturity, Paul will improve unconsciously. Up to now, you've been fretfully initiating much of the discord you deplore. M. H.

You say Used Fats are still needed?

You bet they are, Mrs. Housewife. We wish we could whisper over your shoulder every time you cook . . . to scrape that pan, skim that stew, melt down those meat trimmings . . . every trick you know, to get more fat. That's how serious this world-wide shortage of fats and oils is, according to government reports.
Yes!
And You Get Paid For Them!

Used fats are the only kitchen "leftover" you can turn into cash . . . and cash is mighty handy these days of stiff food prices. So don't throw out even a few drops of used fats. Every bit, even what's left after you've reused your fats, is worth saving . . . to help your country, and to help you!

Biggest and Best

Remember that the largest fruit or vegetable is not necessarily the best. Marketing experts point out that you may get less-than-top quality and poor penny value in certain large-sized fruits. Large apples, for example, may appear to be bargains. But they may be entirely unsuited to the purpose for which the shopper intends them. In other cases, they may be a "best buy."

Ask Anne — Cheaper to Make at Home

Which is cheaper, preparing biscuit or pie crust mixes at home, or buying the ready-mix made by the large food companies? G. M.

It is somewhat cheaper, though, of course, more trouble, to make your own biscuit and pie crust mix at home. There are approximately 9 cups of biscuit mix in a large package of a well known brand. At a chain store, this package sells for about 47 cents. The ingredients for the same amount of mix prepared at home would cost 37 cents; 16 cents for 8 cups of flour, 20 cents for 1 cup of shortening and 1 cent for baking powder and salt.

The costs for home-mixed pie crust break down like this: One 8-ounce package of pie crust mix sells at a chain store for about 16 cents. To make approximately the same amount at home would cost 13 cents: 3 cents for flour and 10 cents for shortening.

My children suffered with one cold after another this winter. Steam is always one of the first suggestions the doctors prescribe and since our steam-heated apartment is very dry, I've been interested in room humidifiers. (The addition of radiator pans was very little good; the water evaporates overnight.) None of our local merchants can enlighten me, but I have heard of the humidifiers and believe they are an attachment that fits on the radiator valve. One hardware man says he will gladly get them for me if I can find out a manufacturer's name. Several friends of mine are also interested and so if you can help us with our problem we will certainly be grateful. D. S.

I have discussed your problem with several heating engineers and it seems there is no automatic equipment on the market which can be attached to steam radiators to increase room humidity. There are, however, self-contained humidifying units on the market which have a fan, a unit for vaporizing the water and a large pan for holding water. The pan has to be filled when it empties, but since it holds more water than the radiator pan, it does not have to be filled so often. This type of equipment is portable, so you could place it where humidity is most needed, possibly in your children's rooms. For firms which sell such equipment and for further information, look under "Humidifying Apparatus" in the yellow pages of the telephone book.

Will you give me the names of some books on "hostess etiquette for serving drinks and different types of meals, i.e., buffets, dinners and luncheons? R. S. B.

"Good Manners in a Nutshell" by Sally Hines (pub. by Nut Shell Publications, P. O. Box 74, Oklahoma City, Okla.) is an inexpensive little book which gives present-day etiquette for all the occasions you mention. And then of course "Etiquette" by Emily Post has been the reference book for such information for many years.

I would like to know the proper care of colored and white nylon material. I have a slip of white jersey which has become yellow. How does nylon compare to other fabrics in warmth? E. F.

The same care which you use in washing rayons should be used for nylons. Nylon differs from rayon in that it is strong when wet and dries very quickly since the fibers do not absorb moisture readily. The slip of white jersey which has yellowed can probably be whitened by soaking it in a mild bleach such as sodium perborate. Use four tablespoons of perborate to one pint of mild soapy water. Allow the garment to remain in this bleach for 30 minutes then wash thoroughly. Nylon is quite like rayon in warmth, but since it does not absorb moisture as readily as rayons, it does not cling during the humid months and for this reason is apt to seem cooler to wear than cotton or rayon.

How can I best lightly tint an old pair of lovely lace curtains? I would like to make them either yellow or ecru. E. F.

Wash the curtains thoroughly and rinse them. Then add yellow or ecru dye (buy the dye used for tinting) to the rinse water. Of course, the amount of dye which you add will be determined by how dark you wish the curtains. Be sure to have enough of the dye-tinted rinse water to completely immerse without crowding the curtains. When curtains are the tint you wish (when wet they are darker than you want them when dry), remove from rinse water and rinse again until water is clear.

Where can I buy avoset, a substance that is used like whipped cream? It was shipped to the Philippines and other places where United States troops are assigned, but I do not know where it can be bought here. It is made in the United States. A. R. G.

If you have military connections, you can probably buy avoset through the commissaries. The Quartermaster Corps tells me that if the commissaries do not stock it, it is for lack of demand, but that they can get it for you. If you are not able to get it from a commissary, it is manufactured by Avoset Incorporated, 429 Arch st., Philadelphia 5, Pa. They can, no doubt tell you where it is sold in this area.

Avoset is cream with a vegetable stabilizer which makes it keep well without refrigeration. It was developed for use by our armed forces in countries where there is little or no refrigeration and is now sold largely in export. It has the same relationship to cream as oleomargerine has to butter.

We have received as a gift a hollow brass candlestick, wired and equipped with a socket to serve as a lamp base. The bottom of the candlestick is a hollow half-circle, the rim of which rests directly on the table without any cushioning. Would you please advise as to where we might have the candlestick fitted with a felt pad to protect the table surface? It would probably be necessary to fit a block of metal or wood into the hollow base as a support for the felt. G. H. F.

A firm which repairs and makes lamps would do the job you wish done. One such firm on G street can be reached by calling National 0140.

Laura Reinhard's collection of more than 2000 rare eighteenth and nineteenth century prints is being shown at Connecticut Galleries, 1534 Connecticut ave. nw. The exhibition will remain on view from 10 to 5 through June 3.

The collection includes prints by Redoutes, Rowlandson, Dr. Thornton's flower prints, Brooksaw fruit prints, Gould bird prints, and prints on sporting events, costumes and other subjects.

Queen Victoria's Birthday to Be Celebrated at Dinner Here

The 24th of May is the Queen's birthday—Queen Victoria, that is, whose exceptionally long and brilliant reign endeared her not only to loyal subjects of the Commonwealth in her day, but whose cherished memory is still an occasion for Canadians to celebrate.

This year Canadians, who in hundreds have either adopted Washington for their residence, or who find themselves here at present on assignment, will gather for dinner at All Saints' Episcopal Church at Chevy Chase Circle. After the invocation, which will be given by the Right Rev. Donald A. MacLean, the installation of officers will take place.

Mrs. Blanche R. Main, who retires from office after a long and very successful presidency, will be succeeded by Dr. Edwin N. C. Barnes.

Dr. L. W. Elstab, president of Gallaudet College, will be the speaker for this occasion, which will be rendered more enjoyable by the singing of Mr. and Mrs. J. Donald Rouse.

To Inherit Ring

Little Maria Cooper, daughter of the motion picture actor and Mrs. Gary Cooper, will inherit her mother's famous sombrero ring. She's like to wear it right now, but it takes two of her small fingers to fill the band. The ring is a miniature Stetson with diamond crown and platinum brim, and the braided hat cord forms the ring going around the finger.

Put Away Dry

Cleaning cloths should be washed out after using and then thoroughly dried before putting away. In their dampened condition they are attractive to roaches; besides, there is always the chance that they will become rank and unpleasant and of no further use in the cleaning line.

Miss Snyder's Ring

Drucie Snyder, daughter of the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Snyder, wears her grandmother's Arkansas wishing ring. It is set with three diamonds for making three wishes. Drucie says that girls were much more superstitious then than they are now.

Salad Brings Garden to Table

By Harriet Jean Anderson

THERE is no reason on earth why we Americans cannot make the best salads in the world. Our gardens are bulging the year around with garden-fresh salad ingredients from Maine to California and from Canada to the Argentine. Refrigeration keeps them crisp and tempting. A spring salad served to the family these warm sunny days brings a touch of country freshness to our table. Even our most salad-spurning men folk can be counted on to meet such a salad face-to-face with enthusiasm if it is made with savoir-faire.

The type of salad you serve depends upon the part it is to play in the meal. You may serve a crisp green salad as an appetizer, a hearty, nourishing salad for the main course, an individual salad before the dessert, or a fruit salad as a dessert itself.

The simplest salad is often the most appealing. After all, it is the creative touch that goes into our most common things that brings forth the unusual and the noteworthy. Greens from the fields or the garden: lettuce, French endive, romaine, chicory, water cress, dandelions and Swiss chard—are in abundance in our city vegetable stalls. Tossed with a tangy French dressing, briskly seasoned with rings of tiny, new onions, scallions or chives, and thoroughly chilled, it is hard to resist.

A connoisseur of salad-making knows that every salad has a few requisites — crispness, appetizing flavor combinations, attractive color contrasts, suitability of dressing to the salad and, of course, it must be cold.

A few salad-making hints we have picked up here and there we pass on to you: When dressing salad greens with oil and vinegar, first season with salt and freshly ground black or white pepper, add oil just to coat the leaves, then vinegar—herb, wine or cider. If vinegar is added before oil, the greens become wet and the oil doesn't cling to them, but settles to the bottom.

Add some bits of crisp bacon, a few anchovies, flaked sardines or small cubes of ham to a green salad for that extra touch. You may like a bit of Roquefort cheese crumbled into the French dressing for a sophisticated flavor, especially with avocado or fruit salads.

Fill a small bowl with water and sprinkle scarlet paprika on the top and revolve a small head of lettuce in it; the leaves will be tipped with red.

Here are some salads for spring that you may wish to serve for luncheon or dinner:

SPRING FRUIT BASKET

2 grapefruits, peeled and sectioned
2 apples, cubed
1 pound sour cherries, pitted
Fruit French dressing
2 tablespoons chopped mint
Mint sprigs

Slice pineapples in half lengthwise and mark off center in squares. Scoop out the pineapple cubes. Mix with grapefruit sections, apples and cherries; pile into the pineapple shells. Sprinkle French dressing made with grapefruit juice in place of vinegar and add chopped mint. Garnish with sprigs of mint. Yield: 4 portions.

POTATO SALAD ESCOFFIER

1 quart diced cooked potatoes
1¼ cups white wine
2 tablespoons chopped chives
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1½ cups French dressing
1 pound cooked julienne green beans
1 pound cooked baby beets, thinly sliced
1 cup mayonnaise
¼ cup pistachio nuts, finely chopped
Water cress

Rub a bowl with garlic; lightly toss in it potatoes with wine; let stand in refrigerator one hour. Drain and add chopped chives and parsley and ½ cup French dressing. Marinate separately green beans and baby beets in ½ cup French dressing. Arrange potato salad on bed of water cress; ring with julienne string beans and beets. Pipe mayonnaise through pastry tube between vegetable rings. Sprinkle with pistachio nuts. Yield. Six portions.

Cabbage Bowl

Choose a large white head of cabbage. Trim off leaves and soak in ice water for one hour. Turn back the outer leaves, anchoring them with toothpicks. Cut out inner part of cabbage with sharp knife and shred. Chill cabbage thoroughly in refrigerator and fill with shredded cabbage and spring vegetable salad mixed with mayonnaise or French dressing. Remove toothpicks and serve on a bed of finely shredded red cabbage that has been sprinkled with French dressing. Chopped green pepper may be added to the red cabbage. Yield. One cabbage bowl.

Doris Needs Some Help in Answering Letter

For the past 10 years, Doris Carter of 1204 S. George Mason dr., Arlington, Va., has been corresponding with a girl in England.

Doris' British friend recently saw a newspicture of the stretch of F st. nw. which lies between 14th st. and the Capitol Theater.

The picture strikingly depicted the queer-looking mosaic of chewing gum which has become imbedded in the pavement there.

The English girl says the picture "rather made us feel sick, and we wonder if America is really like that."

Doris wonders how a gal is supposed to answer a letter like that.

MISCELLANY

F. Royce Franzoni, president of the Gilman drug store at 627 Pennsylvania ave. nw., tells me that several local firms are older than his—among them Galt's jewelry store, the National Bank of Washington and the National Metropolitan Bank. "But I do think," he says, "that we're the oldest firm still doing business at its original location. We've been here since before the renumbering of Pennsylvania ave. addresses, when our number was changed from 350 to 627" . . . Pied Type Department: Jack Ashley of 2604 Lee blvd., Arlington, Va., blinks at an ad in one of our afternoon contemporaries which offers "Strapless sunsuits—$895." Says Jack: "At those prices, my wife would have to settle for a flour sack." Mrs. Milton Jekofsky of 1524 N. 17th st., Arlington, Va., tsk-tsks our other afternoon paper for the line in a Woody's ad which said: "Sorry, but no mail or phone orders can be excepted" . . . And Jim Wilfong, jr., submits the prize of the lot—an ad in the same paper which offers: "Flourescent Desk Lamps, F-M Automatic Record Changer" . . . (What! No fluid drive?) . . . A dentist (no names—he says it would be unethical) tells me that "your District Liner who wants a soft toothbrush can get it at Maxwell & Tennyson's. I know, because I've prescribed soft brushes for hundreds of patients" . . . Midshipman Hugh H. Drake, United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., postcards: "That 1848 business for Phi Gamma Delta is nothing. National headquarters of Sigma Alpha Epsilon are in Evanston, Ill., at 1856 Sheridan rd., P. O. Box 1856, and phone number 1856. Needless to add, the fraternity was founded in 1856" . . . American Cab Driver Jack L. Robertson of 9902 Renfrew rd., Silver Spring, Md., is another hacker who is making lots of friends with his extra services—cigarettes, matches, popular magazines and (best of all) old-fashioned courtesy to his customers . . . Ginny LaMaster of 321 34th st. nw. was listening to a radio commercial for an air-conditioning firm the other day. When the announcer proclaimed that "Portable weather is here at last," Ginny looked at the steady drizzle outside her window and murmured: "Good. Maybe somebody will take this stuff somewhere—the farther the better."

OFFER

Martha Lyon of 707 20th st. nw. is a bit impatient with my complacency.

When Engineer Commissioner Young explained that no Federal agency had funds for beautifying the piers of the old Aqueduct Bridge, Martha snapped:

"Shucks—it wouldn't take any more than some dirt and seeds. I'll buy the seeds if you'll get somebody to row me out there."

Inasmuch as those piers are rather large and inaccessible, it's probably too much of a job for one gal to undertake.

But there's no reason why a group of us can't team up and get General Young's permission to do our own beautifying.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

A few days ago I gave a party for the little tots (ages 2 to 4) at the Swartzell Methodist Home for Children.

Their house mothers, Ellen Baleman and Mrs. Carolyn Reynolds, were worried about the transportation problem. It involved the use of two buses and a streetcar.

But when the Premier Cab people heard about our plans, they insisted on furnishing the round-trip transportation—free of charge.

Wasn't that wonderful of them?

Mrs. Robert Lee Ellis,
4845 Reservoir rd. nw.

Dear Mrs. Ellis:

Wonderful, but not surprising. You and the Premier people merely prove my oft-repeated contention that people are nicer than anybody. Bill.

NEW YORK—A. J. Pazzini, president of the Waugh R. R. Equipment Co., one of the largest in America, owns an estate in Old Lyme, Conn. It has a stream which he wanted to dam to use as a swimming pool. But the contractors he hired failed at the job . . . A few days later Mr. Pazzini was invited to attend the Boulder Dam inaugural ceremonies. He sat next to the major general who had been in charge of the engineering project for the United States Army. Pazzini looked at the 65-mile stretch of water which had been backed up by the dam and told the engineer of his efforts to dam his stream to make a swimming pool. The general, whose engineering prowess helped build this 730-foot-high Boulder Dam, at a cost of $165,000,000—one of the most amazing engineering feats in the world—listened to Pazzini's problem, and suggested: "Have you tried using beavers?"

The first news of Gromyko's recall to Moscow came in an exclusive interview he gave Abe Rosenthal, of the New York Times' U. N. staff. The reporter went to his office to transmit the story—and then Gromyko suddenly remembered something he had forgotten to tell Rosenthal. The Russian delegate sent his secretary with the message . . . The secretary, searching for the Times room, wandered into the U. P. bureau and said to Bob Manning: "I must find Mr. Rosenthal and tell him additional facts about Mr. Gromyko's departure." . . . That's why Rosenthal had to share his story with Manning, who promised, in return, to hold it for one edition.

Tommy Lyman, now singing at Leslie House, once held a partnership in a night club. When the club was sold, Lyman received some cash and a promissory note for $1000 from his partner . . . That night they celebrated by dining at an expensive restaurant. Lyman's former partner ordered sparingly. "Order up," Lyman told him . . . "I can't," the man explained. "I keep remembering that $1000 promissory note I gave you." . . . "I can't do that to you," said Lyman, and tore the promissory note into tiny pieces . . . "Tommy, you're a very shrewd operator," said his former partner. "You must have known that by such a gesture I'll have to pay you at least $200 on that otherwise worthless note."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

3 GOP Leaders Discuss Draft

By Drew Pearson

Three prominent Republicans discussed a substitute for conscription the other morning over their bacon and eggs. They were House Speaker Joe Martin, West Virginia's Congressman Mel Snyder and New Jersey's Congressman Frank Mathews.

Pearson

Snyder and Mathews argued that defense dollars could be better spent to strengthen the National Guard and Reserve. The Speaker gave his blessing to the idea, but suggested also using a limited draft to prod recalcitrants into the National Guard and the Reserve.

"We already have a backlog of 10 to 12 million battle-trained veterans," Snyder pointed out. "Compulsory training would just increase the backlog."

What the country needs, urged the West Virginia Republican, is not a big draft but an efficient reserve program. America already has plenty of civilian minute-men, but lacks a program to keep them up to date and on their toes. Under peacetime conscription, masses of young men would simply march through the military mill and follow the steps of the wartime veterans back into civilian life—with no place to keep their military skills sharpened.

Representative Snyder agreed that fresh blood must be brought into the program, but insisted that the best way to train recruits was through the National Guard and Reserve. For a fraction of the cost of universal military training, the same number of young men could drill once a week and familiarize themselves with the latest weapons, with specialized courses to train technical personnel.

Congressman Mathews agreed. He even suggested that military training be added to the curriculum of the public schools. But Speaker Martin and Snyder did not agree.

Possible GOP Program

The Speaker favored a modified form of the draft, and, in the end, Snyder summed up a compromise program as follows: (1) Require all men between 18 and 30 to register; (2) Stockpile strategic materials; (3) Give the President authority to conscript men for the armed services up to the authorized level, making certain that the ceiling is held down.

"I can go along with that," agreed Martin.

As a final caution, he added: "We have to watch our defense program to keep it within the means of the country to support."

Note—After V-J Day, a far-reaching reserve program was drawn up by representatives of the Regular Army, the Reserve and National Guard. Although this was approved by then Chief of Staff George Marshall and Secretary of War Robert Patterson, it has been wantonly neglected.

A total of 630,000 enlisted men signed up for the Reserve, but the Army hasn't even bothered to get in touch with them. As a result, more than 500,000 are expected to drop out this year. In addition, 278,000 officers signed up for the Reserve, but the Army has assigned only 38,000 to units. The others are merely marking time.

The conclusion seems inescapable that the reason for this gross neglect is that the Army wanted to build up its military might with peacetime conscription rather than use less glamorous manpower already available.

GOP Should Help Wallace

If Henry Wallace neglects to enter a third-party candidate for Congress in any industrial area, the Republican Party will do it for him. This was the boast the other day of Cal Johnson, former Republican Congressman from Illinois.

Speaking privately to friends, Johnson suggested that stooges could be induced to run on the third-party ticket for a $500 fee. On the strength of the national Wallace movement, they would cut heavily into the Democratic vote, he predicted.

After word of this private conversation got around, Johnson hastily explained that he was not speaking official Republican strategy. He admitted, however, that it wasn't such a bad idea.

Road Nationalization?

Story behind the unrelenting drive to settle the railroad dispute is that both sides are getting jittery about nationalization of the industry.

This is no longer the bugaboo it used to be. Inside fact is that management and labor spokesmen are worried over sentiment in Congress to leave the railroads under permanent Federal control if the Government has to seize them every time a work stoppage threatens. Three times in five years—1943, 1946 and 1948—the Government has taken over the industry to avert a Nation-wide transportation tie-up and some Congressmen are getting fed up with the seizure formula.

Both the carriers and the unions fear the results of nationalization. The industry would be run as a Government agency, as the Postoffice Department, with no more taxpayer subsidies to guarantee profits, and the profits, if any, going to the United States Treasury. Management chiefs would become salaried, Federal employes, subject to approval by Congress.

On the other hand, the Railway Brotherhoods would be reduced to the status of Civil Service unions, with their right to strike automatically revoked, since the Taft-Hartley Act forbids strikes against the Government.

AND ITS PEOPLE WHO FOSTER, PROMOTE AND DEVELOP OUR NATION'S COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY

The Department of Commerce . . . was established in 1903 . . . in order to form an agency designed to encourage and stimulate business. By that time, the value of the Nation's commerce had grown to four times the value of its agriculture . . . and yet there was no government office existing to promote trade and industry.

The Department of Commerce . . . is housed in a gigantic structure . . . covering three city blocks. It contains over three thousand rooms . . . a modern aquarium, maintained by the Bureau of Fisheries . . . a Department Library, containing over two hundred thousand publications . . . the Search room of the Patent Office, where any citizen may study the more than two million U. S. Patents in existence.

The Department of Commerce . . . is in the forefront in the continuing struggle to return world trade to a normal basis . . . and especially in those areas suffering from the recent conflict. It has been necessary to expand Commerce's international activities to help increase the flow of goods between nations . . . thereby increasing prosperity in America, and providing foreign countries with urgently needed goods of all sorts.

The Department of Commerce . . . aids business in the United States through seventy-seven field offices, well distributed throughout the land. Bringing information and services of value to almost every type of business imaginable, the Department renders incalculable assistance to business in general.

The Department of Commerce . . . is organized into many subdivisions, among which are . . . the Bureau of the Census, the Nation's head-counter . . . the Civil Aeronautics Administration, helping in the conquest of the air . . . the Coast and Geodetic Survey, surveyor and cartographer of land and sea . . . the Bureau of Standards, custodian of the Nation's basic scientific standards . . . the Weather Bureau, prognosticator of nature's moods.

The eleven thousand Washington workers of the Department of Commerce are charged with the highly important mission of helping to keep our economic machine running smoothly . . . and their success or failure in this job will inevitably be reflected in the prosperity of our country.

The roots of the Department can be traced back to 1785 . . . when George Washington invited delegates from Maryland and Virginia to meet at Mount Vernon to discuss the promotion of trade and commerce between the two states. This convention marked the first public step toward the regulation and improvement of interstate commerce. If those delegates were here today . . . they would scarcely recognize the gigantic government department which their meeting foreshadowed.

Today, Commerce's activities and responsibilities extend into many fields . . . but all are aimed at achieving the Department's primary mission . . . the promotion and development of our Nation's economic well-being. Department workers take the census . . . map the world's oceans . . . establish commodity weights, measures and standards . . . supervise the granting of patents . . . and work in hundreds of other ways to improve transportation, trade and industry, thereby increasing the prosperity of all our citizens.

The Hecht Company takes pleasure in saluting the workers of the Department of Commerce . . . whose work is so closely integrated with our Nation's welfare.

All of the material contained herein has been secured from the Department of Commerce and the Library of Congress.
